INQUIRY BEGUN IN LOSS OF $500,000 OF STATE MONIES

President Pro Tem Painter of Missouri Senate Institutes Action to Fix Official Responsibility.

DUE TO FAILURE OF BANK DEPOSITORIES

Resolution, Introduced by Farris, Demands Facts of Treasurer and Auditor; Committee Named.

By CURTIS A. BETTS, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 8.—A Senate inquiry to fix the official responsibility for losses to the State treasury, said to reach nearly $500,000, through failures of banks which are State depositories, was instituted this morning by Senator Painter of Carrollton, president pro tem.

A resolution introduced by Senator Frank Farris at the instance of Senator Painter appointing a special committee, which the Senate adopted without debate, proposes an investigation with three purposes:

To establish exactly the amount the State has lost;

To determine whether high State officials have been lax in the duty of inspecting security required;

To attempt to fix the responsibility and liability for the losses.

Painter's resolution was in routine form, setting out none of its real purposes. It merely directed the committee to ascertain from the State Treasurer's office the amount of money subject to the State Treasurer's check, and the amount of all other funds not subject to check.

As all State money is subject to check, this last item refers to the amount of deposits in defunct banks and which the State has not been able to recover through sale of securities deposited for its protection.

Painter's Resolution.

Senator Painter's resolution follows:

Resolved, That a committee of five Senators be appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate who shall immediately ascertain from the State Auditor of Missouri a detailed statement of the amount of money that should be in the Treasury of the State of Missouri, in each and every fund thereof, on the eighth day of January, Nineteen Hundred Twenty-Five, and that the State Auditor be and is hereby requested to furnish and deliver such statement to said committee.

And he further resolved, That said committee immediately ascertain from the State Treasurer the amount of cash in his hands as such officer, whether in the vaults at Jefferson City or elsewhere, that is subject to check, at sight, for any and all purposes of the State government on this date, Jan. 8, 1925.

And he further resolved, That said committee shall immediately ascertain from the State Treasurer of Missouri if there be in his hands as such in cash or money subject to check sufficient to balance and meet the amounts so charged against him as shown by the books of the State Auditor on this Jan. 8, 1925, and if there be insufficient cash in the hands of the said State Treasurer in all of the various funds and moneys of the State government to meet and balance with the amounts as shown by the books of the State Auditor on said date that said committee shall ascertain the amount of such differences, and the party or parties responsible for the same and shall report to this body as soon as practicable.

And he further resolved, That the State Treasurer of Missouri be requested to furnish said committee with all information in his possession touching this inquiry.

Committee and Records.

The committee appointed to conduct the inquiry consists of Senators Ralph and Hildreth, the last being Republicans.

The records of the State Treasurer's office today show a total of $1,243,300 State money on deposit in defunct banks and not immediately available for checking out. This, $416,163.77 is in the Holland bank in Springfield; $32,000 in the Brookfield Trust Co. in the Brookfield of New Bloomfield.

It was stated at the Treasurer's office that the securities covering the deposit in the Holland bank amounted by $36,000 the amount of

ENFORCEMENT PLEA PRESENTED AT WHITE HOUSE

Committee, Headed by Gary, Discusses With President, at Breakfast, Citizens' Resolutions.

YOUNG ROCKEFELLER MAKES ADDRESS

Executive Urged to Impress Upon All U. S. Officials Importance of Upholding Law of the Land.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Under the leadership of Senator Watson (Rep.), Indiana, administration forces succeeded today in having the opening of the Senate investigation of the prohibition enforcement unit conducted behind closed doors.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Across the White House breakfast table this morning, President Coolidge was urged to impress vigorously upon all Federal officials the importance of obeying and enforcing the law of the land, both by "precept and personal example."

The enlistment of "presidential aid" was in the form of resolutions adopted in New York City by the Citizens' Committee of One Thousand for Law Enforcement, and were conveyed to the Executive by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, who acted as chairman of the special committee that gathered for breakfast and a discussion of prohibition enforcement.

The President's guests were Gary, John D. Rockefeller Jr., V. Everet Macy, George A. Plimpton, Frederick A. Wallis, Clifford Barnes, Patrick Henry Callahan, Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the National Committee, S. S. Kresge and William F. Cochran.

President's Attitude Commended.

One resolution requests the President and the Governors of the various States to urge all officials of every rank and classification, appointive or elective, to join them by precept and personal example; and, so far as they may, by active participation in all administration efforts, in maintaining among the citizens of our republic the high determination to obey and enforce the law of the land.

A second resolution "commends to the people of the United States, and particularly to their official representatives, the attitude of the President in his obedience to the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, in the hope that the example of the First Citizen of our country may induce those who are now wilfully violating the prohibitory statute to accept his leadership in conduct and to indorse in practice the integrity of his fidelity to the supremacy of law."

Would Arouse Public Opinion.

Judge Gary, in presenting the resolutions, declared enforcement of the prohibitory laws had become a problem largely of arousing public opinion to the obligation of obeying the laws. He said the national citizens' committee had been organized to meet this need, but was not sending out detectives to ferret out, illicit liquor and drugs and was not seeking to hale offenders into court.

Gary's statement was elaborated on somewhat by Rockefeller and short addresses also were made by Wallis and Barnes.

ELIMINATOR FOR NON-LEASE RADIO LISTENERS-IN DEvised

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—An instrument making possible the elimination of "listeners-in" of all radio owners who have not leased the device is understood to have been perfected by the American Telegraph and Telephone Co., the Evening World says today.

Although a company officer recently denied that such an instrument had been perfected, the newspaper says prominent men were taken into one of the company's plants a few days ago and given a demonstration of the instrument, which was attached by telephone wires to station WEAF.

Declares This Country Has Right to Demand That Foreign Nations Curb Export of Liquor.

CITES BRITISH NOTE TO RUSSIA

Compares Liquor Smuggling by Foreigners With Soviet's Aim to Undermine British Government.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—In a telegram received by the Committee of One Thousand for Law Enforcement, United States Senator Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, declared the United States has as much right to demand that England prevent her nationals from trying to undermine the British government.

The Senator's telegram was made public during a luncheon at which the Committee of One Thousand entertained Mayor William E. Dever of Chicago, and praised his work in behalf of enforcement of prohibition laws and other statutes.

Frank Hague, Mayor of Jersey City and Democratic leader of that State, and John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, attended the luncheon. The speech of Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation.

John D. Rockefeller Jr., one of the speakers, surprised his audience by repeating for Mayor Dever's benefit, the advice given by a father to his son: "My son, so live that you can look any damned man in the face and tell him to go to hell."

DRIVER, ARRESTED 26 TIMES, GETS 14 DAYS IN WORKHOUSE

Arthur Hartman, 27, Charged With Carelessness and Operating Auto While Intoxicated.

Arthur Hartman, 27 years old, of 4427 Wilcox avenue, was given 14 days in the workhouse by a police court jury which today found him guilty of careless driving and operating an automobile while intoxicated.

Police Sgt. Fred Wardle of Magnolia District testified he was called to Tower Grove Park after citizens saw an automobile wildly crossing lawns and plunging through shrubbery. He found the unoccupied car lodged against an iron deer, and a further search revealed Hartman, the owner, asleep on the floor of the United Railways waiting room at the Tower Grove avenue entrance of the Park. Hartman, who has been arrested 26 times, declared he was not driving the car. He had been to a wedding party with a friend, he said, and because he was "very drunk" the friend was at the wheel while Hartman sat in the rear seat between two young women. The driver seemed to lose control, he said, and the next thing he knew they had stopped against the deer. He was waiting for a taxicab when arrested, he testified.

Court records show that Hartman has been arrested 14 times in traffic cases. He has been fined for peace disturbance and for speeding and other traffic violations. After the verdict, he filed notice of appeal and was released on bond.

CITY BLANKETED IN SMOKE DUE TO LOW WIND VELOCITY

Relative Humidity Too Low to Cause Fog, Weather Bureau Announces.

A wind velocity of less than three miles an hour resulted in St. Louis and a wide area in this section being blanketed in a heavy smoke for several hours this forenoon.

The blackness was unusually heavy along the river and trains entering St. Louis by way of the Merchants' Bridge were delayed when the engineers could not see the signals and traveled slowly. At one time eight trains were held in the Terminal yards and some of them arrived as late as 25 minutes.

The Weather Bureau said that observations made at Scott Field showed a low wind velocity of about three miles an hour, and at 3:30 feet only one mile an hour. The relative humidity, was too low, the bureau announced, to cause formation of a fog, and the visibility conditions were due entirely to lack of wind to carry away smoke.

COMPLAINTS ARE MADE AGAINST FEDERAL JUDGE GEORGE W. ENGLISH

REFEREE THOMAS RESIGNS AFTER SEVERE CRITICISM

"Pressure of Other Business" Given as Reason by Federal Appointee in Illinois District.

ACTION COMES AT START OF INQUIRY

Official Was Assailed in Court for Trying to Appear as Attorney in Bankruptcy Case.

Charles B. Thomas today resigned as Referee in Bankruptcy in the Eastern Illinois District, giving as a reason "pressure of other business" and declaring he had served "as well as he knew how" since 1918.

The resignation came at the start of an inquiry into the conduct of his office, which led also to the filing of complaints against Federal Judge English, by whose appointments he had served as a subordinate court officer.

Severe criticism of Referee Thomas was voiced in open court at Indianapolis recently by Federal Judge Anderson, who informed Thomas he was violating the law by attempting to appear as an attorney in a bankruptcy hearing there. Details of this are given elsewhere in today's Post-Dispatch.

Referee Thomas' letter of resignation was filed today with the clerk of Judge English's Court, following the procedure of the House for a minute and three-quarters.

Letter of Resignation.

The letter of Referee Thomas' letter of resignation follows:

Hon. George W. English, Judge of United States District Court for Eastern District of Illinois.

My Dear Judge:

I hereby tender to you my resignation as United States Referee in Bankruptcy for this district.

As you recall, I have talked this matter over with you a number of times. I now feel that my private law practice and business interests are such that I will not have time to do justice to the office without neglecting my other duties, which are worth, as you know, much more money to me than the earnings of the office. I have a growing law practice, several big receiver-ships, and have just moved the trust company, all of which require my earnest attention.

I have served you and the public in this capacity to the best of my ability for more than seven and a half years. In my lifetime I have served the public almost 15 years on the bench in connection with the state and Federal courts, and although I have had a great many cases appealed from my decisions during that time, I am proud to say I have never been reversed.

I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the favors you have shown me in the past, and I assure you our most intimate and confidential relation and undying friendship for almost a quarter of a century shall never cease.

You may accept this, my resignation, if you will, at your convenience. I am as always, Your friend,

C. B. THOMAS.

The trust company to which Thomas refers in his letter of resignation is the Metropolitan Trust Co., in the ownership of which he is associated with George C. Probst, banker and brewery owner of New Athens, Ill.

The brewery owned by Probst has been seized several times by Federal prohibition agents for alleged violations of the Volstead act.

In the trust company in which Probst and Thomas are associated each owns 249 shares of stock. John A. Halloran of St. Louis and D. S. Ledbetter of McLeansboro, Ill., own one share each. Thomas is president; Probst is vice president; Halloran, Probst's son-in-law, is secretary, and Ledbetter, a son-in-law of Thomas, is cashier. The trust company occupies the quarters in the Metropolitan Building.

Judge English Sharply Criticised On Floor of Congress in Case of War Profiteer With a Weak Heart

FOLLOWING is the text of a speech in Congress May 30, last, in which Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia of the Twentieth New York District sharply criticised Federal Judge English for letting off a war profiteer with a small fine. The excerpt is from the record in bound volume 65, part 10, "Sixty-eighth Congress, First Session":

Mr. La Guardia: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for a minute and three-quarters.

The Speaker: The gentleman from New York asks unanimous consent to address the House for a minute and three-quarters. Is there objection? (There was no objection.)

Mr. La Guardia: Mr. Speaker, I hesitate to take a minute and three-quarters, but on this solemn day, when the whole nation is paying tribute to those who gave their whole, their all, for the sake of the country, we read in this morning's newspapers the disgusting report of a Federal Court Judge, after a plea of guilty of a war profiteer who stole $1,000,000 from the Government during the war, on the pretext of having a weak heart was let off with a fine of $12,500. This man is Henry L. Joyce, who was the marine manager of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. His two corporations that participated in the loot did not plead guilty to a weak heart, but pleaded guilty to the crime and were let off with a fine of $1000 each. I consider such a fine simply disgraceful.

The Speaker: The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. La Guardia: I ask for half a minute more. I want to add that my attention has been called to the fact that the Judge was sitting in the Southern District of New York.

The Speaker: The gentleman asks for half a minute more. Is there objection?

Mr. Underhill: I object.

The objection of Congressman Underhill put an end to Congressman La Guardia's remarks.

ADMITTS HE 'COUNTED OUT' A DEMOCRAT

A Campaign Aid of Congressman Perlman of New York Says He Changed Ballots.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—George Rosken, a campaign manager for Representative Nathan Perlman, Republican, who was re-elected to Congress from the Fourteenth New York District last November, today told District Attorney Banton that he had been hired to change the returns in Perlman's district so as to count out William J. Sirovich, Democratic candidate, and re-elect Perlman.

In a sworn confession, Rosken said that at midnight on election night a messenger told him that Sirovich's plurality in the district must be kept down to 50. Rosken asserted that he took blank ballots and marked a cross opposite Perlman's name. He also said he made crosses in Perlman's square and that of William Carlin, the Socialist.

Rosken, who made his disclosures to Banton before testifying to a grand jury, said that if the ballots in the Twenty-third Election District of this city were recounted they would show enough unmarked ballots to enable Sirovich to overcome the apparent lead of 131 which Perlman was credited with.

ONE COURT DECISION CALLED 'DISGUSTING'

English Assigns Bankrupt Assets to Be Sold by Corporation Run by His Son and Referee's Son-in-Law

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—It became known today, from an authoritative source, that the Department of Justice has begun an investigation into complaints on file here against Federal Judge George Washington English of East St. Louis.

Judge English was appointed to the Federal bench in 1918 by President Wilson. A Federal Judge is appointed for life, removable only by impeachment in Congress, a rare procedure.

Complaints sent to Washington "involve procedure in bankruptcy cases and in criminal cases in which C. B. Thomas, Referee in Bankruptcy, has appeared before Judge English. Referee Thomas is an officer of Judge English's court, appointed by Judge English, and in the primary last year was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Illinois.

Denunciation in Congress.

Attention has been called here to a denunciation of Judge English, uttered on the floor of the House of Representatives last Memorial Day by Congressman La Guardia of New York, in which he called attention of Congress to "the disgusting report of a Federal Court Judge, after a plea of guilty of a war profiteer who stole $1,000,000 from the Government during the war, on the pretext of having a weak heart was left off with a fine of $12,500. * * * His two corporations that participated in the loot did not plead guilty to a weak heart, but pleaded guilty to the crime and were let off with a fine of $1000 each. I consider such a fine simply disgraceful."

Also attention of the Government is centered upon the recent denunciation of Judge English and Referee Thomas by Congressman Underhill, since elevated to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago.

Upon his return to his court at Indianapolis, Judge Anderson found before him Bankruptcy Referee Thomas, appearing as an attorney in the bankruptcy proceedings against the Hawkins Mortgage Co., of Portland, Ind., officials of which recently were convicted of using the mails to defraud in a gigantic swindle in which investors sunk millions of dollars.

Judge English, when sitting for Judge Anderson in Indianapolis in the latter's absence, had permitted Referee Thomas to appear as counsel in the Hawkins bankruptcy case. In exhorting Referee Thomas and driving him from his court, Judge Anderson said:

"Aside from the indecency of the thing—the apparent impropriety of it—aside from the statute, I am surprised that Judge English would permit you to practice before him. There have been some very strange proceedings here in my absence. On the face of it it looks nasty."

Judge Anderson remarked that "told a good deal about what the law was and about what the provisions of the statute were." He then read the law to Referee Thomas: "Referees shall not practice as attorneys and counsellors at law in any bankruptcy proceedings."

Referee Thomas pleaded that he had understood the law prohibited him only from practicing in Judge English's district—the Eastern District of Illinois. He offered to withdraw, but Judge Anderson retorted: "Let's not withdraw, yet. You are not in. The statute says you can't."

get in. You have no business here. You are a judicial officer, prohibited by the statute from practicing in bankruptcy cases. An attorney at law and an officer of the court, you came here and attempted to be admitted to this bar here to practice in a bankruptcy case."

Under consideration here also is the recent disbarment of Judge English from his court of former United States District Attorney Charles Karch of East St. Louis.

Judge English's district comprises the eastern and southern part of Illinois. He holds court at East St. Louis, where he now resides, and at Danville and Cairo.

I want you to understand that men on their way to and from work are not to be molested. When you put a man on the job (for law enforcement) who is a striker, you are in a conspiracy to violate the order of the court. Unless you mend your way, the Board of Trustees will be without a chairman. If you have no more sense than to put such a man on the job, you ought to resign. Paris, Jan. 6.—A divorce was granted by the French courts today to Mrs. Sophia Madeline Coy of Edward Harris Coy ("Ted Coy"), the former Yale football star. PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—A safe robber, believed to be John Wallace of Chicago, N. Y., was shot to death early today by Postmaster Herbert Park of Gibsonia, near here.

The Postmaster surprised two men in the act of robbing the postoffice safe. He opened fire with a rifle. The men ran from the building and made a stand behind a pile of cinders, returning the fire.

After an exchange of shots the Postmaster's rifle found its mark in the chest of one robber. The other robber escaped.

15 WORKMEN INJURED IN GAS EXPLOSION AT CINCINNATI

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—More than 15 workmen were injured and damage estimated at $10,000 was caused when leaking gas in the main off-take header of the main gas plant of the East End Electric Co. exploded in the East End plant here today. Four valves which led into the 12-foot water gas sets let go at one time.

The explosion was of such tremendous proportions that it caused terror not only among the 100 or more workmen, but also among the thousands of East End residents whose windows were broken in hundreds of homes.

Workmen ran from the plant, fearing that a huge storage tank containing 1,175,000 cubic feet of gas might explode. There was no danger, however, from this source, officials said.

HOLIDAY FURLOUGH TO BE ABOLISHED AT REFORMATORY

Renewal of Criminal Associations by Two St. Louis Youths Brings Sterner Policy.

REVISION OF PAROLE SYSTEM PROPOSED

Superintendent Says Freedom Can Be Won Now by Any Offender Within Year's Time.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Jan. 8.—Changes in the administration policy of the State Reformatory have been decided upon as the result of two youthful inmates renewing their criminal associations in St. Louis last month while on a furlough, urged, in one instance, by former Congressman Fred Eason and State Senator Joseph Brown.

The holiday furlough system will be abolished, Supt. C. M. Harrison said today. The holiday furlough permits inmates, who had been in the institution for eight months and had been granted a Christmas furlough, to spend the Christmas week at home. This year 40 furloughs were granted and 38 of those so favored returned here on time.

George Roloff, 17, of St. Louis, who was granted a month's furlough on the plea his mother was seriously ill, used part of his time in the winning of 270 merit marks which can be done in 10 months and usually is done within a year. Thus the highway robber is placed on a par with the delinquent child. The sentences may be for five years but they seldom spend more than one year.

"If they did stay here more than a year," Supt. Harrison said, "we are not caring for 700 with adequate room for 600. There are now out on parole 793. If they had not been paroled, we would have 1492. I intend to ask the State Board of Penal Institutions to look into this matter and do something. It is not fair for the adult robber to be treated the same as mere children where offenses were not great."

Adult Criminal Problem.

"It seems to me some of the adult criminals here could just as well be sent to the State Penitentiary at Jefferson City. Once they are sent here we have to keep them unless we are given cause to transfer them to the penitentiary."

Harrison disclaimed responsibility for the practice of granting holiday furloughs and paroles, saying he had merely followed the practice of his predecessors. There appears to be no statute covering the furlough, nor was Harrison sure of the basis for the quick paroles. Suggestions made frequently by sociologists that an institution be established to take the older inmates away from Boonville are not favored by Harrison, although he admits some of the older ones attempt to corrupt the younger.

Segregation Incomplete.

Harrison thinks segregation should be by character rather than by age, as it is not unusual for a 16-year-old boy to be more vicious than a man 10 years older. Segregation now is incomplete and to some extent ineffective. The inmates are divided according to their ages into 18 companies and one company member is prohibited from speaking to another. Nevertheless, they do mingle on occasions, Harrison told the reporter.

The institution is conducted on a quasi-military plan. The inmates, ranging in age from 8 to 28, are members of companies, each of which is presided over by two adult inmates with the titles of captain and assistant captain. Formerly these captains meted out discipline direct, but now they are supposed to obtain permission from the superintendent for corporal punishment.

Supt. Harrison opened a drawer of his desk and showed the reporter two straps. One is an unusually long razor strap, the other is a strap about the size of a leather whip. Only one of the two is used, he explained.

On the Silent Line.

Offenders against regulations are compelled to stand on the silent line for 30 days. Sundays excluded. Their backs to their fellow students, workers, playmates or eaters.

If this enforced silence be deemed not sufficient, 25 lashes with a strap are ordered.

The shops and buildings include workrooms, study rooms, the latter embracing grade school and two rooms of high school. The company members are the teachers. The inmates are selected for reasons of political and educational attainments for their educational attainments. Captains are paid $100 monthly salary, plus board.

The reformatory appropriation for the biennial period of 1923-24 was $225,000, of which $137,000 went for salaries. Harrison said a monthly charge of $15 is levied against counties for each person committed.

Harrison, a Republican newspaper editor and politician, had no institutional experience prior to his appointment to the superintendency in 1921. He got the job through being an original Hyde man and now he claims to have been an original Baker man. Asked if he expected reappointment he said he had heard by grapevine that Gov. Baker would reappoint him if he desired reappointment. He said the job means $3000 a year salary and maintenance, including a spacious home, several servants and two automobiles.

Hill Indite as Cook.

Harrison is 61 years old, married and the father of three children. Until recently Harrison had a 32-year-old inmate, George Robertson, for his family cook. Robertson has been paroled. This man originally had been sentenced to the penitentiary but, according to Harrison, his sentence was commuted to the Reformatory through intercession of Gov. Len Small of Illinois, who knew of Robertson's ability as a chef, as he was formerly a resident of Peoria, Ill. It will be recalled in this connection that Gov. Small also used his influence to aid "Big Gus" Zeiler, ex-convict and chef, who once worked in Small's kitchen.

Immorality is the greatest problem to be combated, Supt. Harrison continued, adding that a number of degenerates are here with no provision for isolating them. Intoxication and addiction to narcotics also have given trouble in the past, but not just now, he said. Twice Harrison has caught boys with narcotics. In one case an inmate detached to the hospital sold several grains of morphine to another.

Inmates are not allowed to visit the town of Boonville or relatives, he said. He admitted that a few are still permitted to work on nearby farms half of their wages going to the Reformatory fund. Also, a few boys are employed in Boonville.

Religious services for Protestants and Catholics are held each Sunday for one hour. Jewish services are held on special days.

Roloff's Statement.

George Roloff, when arrested in St. Louis last police "I don't want to go back to Boonville. All I learned there was how to stick up people and other kinds of crime. I had rather go to the penitentiary."

Sue real reason behind it is possible for an inmate to learn something about crime from another inmate. One reason for this, he said, is that most of those sent here from St. Louis are designated merely as "delinquents" with no other personal history. Consequently, it may not be known here that they were highwaymen, as were Roloff and Jones. It would be a great help if the juvenile court or police would forward a complete history of the delinquent, including felonies and misdemeanors committed by him, Harrison said.

The real reason why Roloff does not wish to be sent back here, Harrison believes, is that he knows he will be subjected to a whipping and 30 days of silence. The same punishment awaits Jones.

Roloff Robbery Case Transferred to Juvenile Court.

Roloff was arraigned in Justice Court at Clayton today for a preliminary hearing on one of the seven highway robberies he perpetrated during his brief period of freedom.

Because of his age Justice of the Peace Weremeyer ordered the case transferred to Juvenile Court, where it will be heard later by Circuit Judge McGinnis.

C. E. Levitz, former Assistant Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, the victim of the robbery in question, announced he was planning to hire a lawyer to act as special prosecutor. He fears, he said, that Roloff's influential friends will manage to get him back to Boonville to serve out his present term before he is prosecuted for the highway crimes. Prosecuting Attorney Mueller said he would approve the appointment of a special prosecutor employed by Levitz.

CHASERS AFTER HIS TROUSERS

Hotel Guest Had Money in Pocket When Captured and Fined.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—A woman burglar from the hotel room of Donald McBain of Galena, Ill., early today with McBain's trousers which he said contained $83.

A chase through the corridors followed and two women were seen fleeing. One, Mrs. Dorothy Bryan, was arrested with the trousers, according to the police, but she had only $4 and a check. She later was fined $100 and costs after she had returned the money to McBain. She said she entered the wrong room, not knowing she had the trousers. The second woman seen in the corridor escaped.

OPPOSES WHITE CONFERENCE

GENEVA, Jan. 8.—Representative Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the House of Representatives, today took exception to this afternoon against the resolution introduced in the House in Washington last month by Representative Britten of Illinois for a conference of white nations bordering on the Pacific.

Porter, who learned of the resolution only today upon his return from a trip to Tunis to resume his place as head of the American delegation to the international conference, called Representative Henry W. Temple of Pennsylvania, ranking member of the Foreign Relations Committee, to an early meeting of the committee and the adoption of a negative report on the resolution, as affecting Japan, saying such action would be with his hearty approval.

U. S. TO COLLECT GERMAN CLAIMS ON DAWES PLAN

Churchill and Logan Unite on Plan Which Virtually Assures Occupation Costs Settlement.

TIME EXTENDED TO 24 YEARS

$350,000,000 Total to Be Shaved—U. S. to Share in Reparations on Same Percentage as Allies.

By ARNO DOSCH FLEURET, Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

Copyright, 1925, The News and Pulitzer Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—The United States will collect for her war damages from Germany under the Dawes plan, Winston Churchill, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, agreed to yesterday afternoon in conversation with Col. James A. Logan Jr., the American delegate, after the first meeting of the inter-allied financial ministers to return the United States sacrifices those clauses of the Wadsworth agreement under which the Rhine occupation costs were to be paid in 12 years.

Understand also that the United States will be expected to share the costs below $350,000,000, which the claim now totals. The American occupation costs retain their priority in the German cash payments, but will be stretched over a period of 24 or more years. The United States claims for damages, if Germany pays according to the Dawes scheme will probably be $12,000,000 to $20,000,000 annually, the sum varying in different years.

Spa Agreement Not Deranged.

These damage claims will have a curious position in the new reparations pie. The percentages agreed upon in the Spa agreement, which was changed to make room for them. They will be deducted immediately after the fixed priorities, which are the costs of occupation, the service of Germany and the allied damages claims will be subject to reduction if Germany does not pay her full annuities.

Of the $350,000,000 gold marks approximately $25,000,000 Germany is due to pay annually after five years, 400,000,000 will pay the priorities. Then about 75,000,000 will be used for the American damages. The rest will be split among the allies according to the Spa percentages. The 400,000,000 for priorities is irreducible, no matter what Germany pays. The American damage claims and the allied shares will be reduced if Germany does not pay the full annuity and will be reduced in a same proportion.

It will take a number of days to get this and other settlements into form, but the bargain between Churchill and Logan has been made. He talked a later-day deal with the French Finance Minister, Clementel, in the morning. Last night he went over the same ground with Premier Theunis of Belgium.

Churchill's Position.

The British Chancellor's position, which I have from authoritative sources is this: The war debts are a long way from being settled. There will not be any inter-allied conference to settle them, at least not for the present. There will be individual negotiations between the governments instead.

Churchill wants to see the present conference amicably ended. He considers it of secondary importance, having as its main object the amicable settlement of financial relations between the allies on the question of reparations. That is why he insists the Spa agreement should not be revised. It was difficult enough to settle at the time. The settlement of inter-allied debts, however, he considers of prime importance, and will entail long negotiations. His own words are: "The situation is not ripe to settle inter-allied debts. It cannot be hurried. The main thing is good will on the part of both debtors and creditors."

AVIATOR PHOTOGRAPHS GENERAL, DEVELOPS PLATE IN AIR, DROPS THE PICTURE

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., Jan. 8.

WHAT is believed to be a record in printing a photograph has been made here.

When Brig.-Gen. William A. Mitchell boarded a train at Dayton yesterday for Washington, he was photographed from the air by a McCook Field photographer. The photographer printed the picture in the air and dropped it at Xenia in a bag. The station agent presented it to Gen. Mitchell when his train passed through the town.

The McCook Field photographer was half way back to Dayton when he passed Gen. Mitchell's train. Xenia is about 17 miles from Dayton.

MURDER DEFENDANT WILL NOT CALL WITNESSES

Three Examined at Hearing of Trapper Charged with Slaying Kansas Woman.

By the Associated Press.

BAUDETT, Minn., Jan. 8.—Tony Reamer, trapper and woodsman, charged with the murder of Mrs. Edna Wheeler, Kansas woman, in the Northwest Angle, will not call witnesses in his hearing being held here, his attorneys announced today.

The announcement came at the close of testimony before R. C. Hanson, Court Commissioner, this morning.

Three witnesses were examined. Dr. Elliott of Warroad, Sheriff Thomas Shind and Conrad Hagen, owner of the cabin in which Mrs. Wheeler was found dead of a knife wound.

Testimony today reiterated statements made previously in the examination of the last witness, which was the cabin in which Mrs. Wheeler was found dead of a knife wound.

E. C. Middleton, County Attorney, announced at the close of the session this morning that his case probably will be completed Friday morning.

Because of travel difficulties encountered in traversing the snow-bound country, one of the important witnesses for the State will be unable to reach here before Friday. This is the last witness to be introduced by the prosecution.

OBTAINS ANNULMENT OF MARRIAGE TO M. V. BROOKS

Former Mrs. A. D. Niederluecke Also Permitted to Reassume Her Maiden Name.

Mrs. Marguerite Brooks of Chicago, who formerly was the wife of August D. Niederluecke, court stenographer for Circuit Judge Killgore, obtained a decree annulling her second marriage to Morrell V. Brooks, who has an office in the Planters Building, from Judge Hartman of the Court of Domestic Relations today.

She testified that she was married to Brooks on Aug. 14 last, when still legally the wife of Niederluecke, being under the mistaken impression that Niederluecke had obtained a divorce decree on Aug. 7. She did not learn until Sept. 11, she said, that the divorce had not been granted till Aug. 21, whereupon Brooks left her, claiming their marriage was void.

Her maiden name, she was restored by the annulment decree. Attention had not been drawn to the annulment suit until it was set for hearing today. On Sept. 11 Niederluecke filed suit against Brooks for $20,000 damages, alleging alienation of his former wife's affections.

SAYS JEALOUS HUSBAND POWDERED FLOOR OF ROOM

A husband so jealous that he locked his bride in a bedroom and sprinkled face powder on the floor when still legally the wife of Niederluecke, being under the mistaken impression that Niederluecke had obtained a divorce decree on Aug. 7. She did not learn until Sept. 11, she said, that the divorce had not been granted till Aug. 21, whereupon Brooks left her, claiming their marriage was void.

Her maiden name, she was restored by the annulment decree. Attention had not been drawn to the annulment suit until it was set for hearing today. On Sept. 11 Niederluecke filed suit against Brooks for $20,000 damages, alleging alienation of his former wife's affections.

BAKER SELECTS ENLOE AS PENAL BOARD HEAD

A. H. Steinbeck Named to Succeed Pool as Parole Commissioner.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 8.—Dr. Cortez F. Enloe of Jefferson City, retiring secretary of the State Board of Health, who is regarded by Republican politicians as the "Col. House" of the approaching Baker administration, will head the State Penal Board as Director of Penal Institutions, Governor-elect Baker announced today. The appointment, long expected in capital circles, is effective Jan. 12.

At the same time, Baker announced his appointments for the remainder of the board as follows: S. T. Nix, Republican, Keosauqua, warden; J. I. Burnett, Jefferson City, Democrat, supervisor of industries; A. H. Steinbeck, Republican, Union, Commissioner of Pardons and Pardon; W. B. McGregor, Democrat, Brookfield, reappointed as superintendent of farms.

The appointments virtually make a clean sweep of the Hyde appointees from the State Penal Board, as forecast in the Post-Dispatch. McGregor, a Democrat, is the only name reappointed.

Enloe received a salary of approximately $6500 as secretary of the State Board of Health, including special salary allowances for Federal work in connection with the department. As Director of Penal Institutions, he will receive a salary of $10000 a year, but also will have the use of the residence maintained by the State adjacent to the prison for the director. Other board members receive $3500 a year. Enloe succeeds H. F. Hoffman, Republican, of Trenton, who has resigned.

Burnett has been superintendent of manufacturing for the D. M. Oberman Manufacturing Co., which has factories in Jefferson City and other Missouri cities. Oberman manufactures overalls and work clothes in the local plant and purchases some of his finished goods from the factories of the penitentiary. Oberman formerly operated on the prison contract system before it was terminated by law.

Burnett is a stockholder in the Oberman company, it was learned, but declined to say how much stock he held. He asserted that would have no effect on his dealings with the Oberman company after he becomes supervisor of industries in the penitentiary.

"If the other stockholders do not own any more than I hold," he said, "then Oberman owns about the whole thing."

The Oberman company at times buys clothing from the prison. Officers of the firm and engineers in passenger service will get an increase of 24 cents a day and in freight service of 36 cents a day. The hostlers will be given 22 cents a day increase. Several hundred men are affected.

Dr. James Stewart of St. Louis to Be Health Board Secretary.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 8.—Appointment of Dr. James Stewart, Republican, of St. Louis, as Secretary of the State Board of Health, was announced this afternoon by Governor-elect Baker. Stewart recently was appointed a member of the Board of Health, the appointment being made by Gov. Hyde, at the request of Dr. Cortez F. Enloe. The secretary of the Board of Health received salaries totaling $6500 a year.

Stewart has been director of hygiene of the St. Louis Board of Education for several years.

Mason, vice president and general manager. Under the agreement the firemen and engineers in passenger service will get an increase of 24 cents a day and in freight service of 36 cents a day. UNDERWOOD SHOALS BILL FAVORED IN TEST

Substituted for Norris Measure, 48 to 37—Some Thought They Voted for Passage.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The Senate today voted to substitute the Underwood bill, providing private operation at Muscle Shoals, for the Norris Government-operation bill, but left the measure pending subject to amendment. The vote for substitution of the Underwood bill was 48 to 37. Many of those who voted believed they were disposing of the problem, so far as the Senate was concerned. After a long parliamentary wrangle, President Cummins ruled the action was merely on substitution for the Norris bill.

An amendment by Senator Ladd (Rep.) of North Dakota, transferring from the Secretary of War to the President the power to make the lease of the property, was adopted without a record vote when Senator Underwood announced he would not oppose it.

The roll call on the motion to substitute the Underwood bill for the Norris Government-operation bill was as follows: Ayes—Republicans—Ball, Burton, Butler, Cameron, Curtis, Dale, Edge, Fernald, Fess, Hale, Jones of Washington, Keyes, Ladd, McCormick, McLean, Means, Metcalf, Odell, Pepper, Phillips, Reed of Pennsylvania, Shortridge, Smoot, Stanford, Sterling, Wadsworth, Warren, Watson, Weller and Williams—30.

No—Democrats—Bayard, Broussard, Bruce, Caraway, Dial, Edwards, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Harrison, Heflin, King, Owen, Pittman, Robinson, Shields, Stanley and Underwood—18.

Against the Underwood bill, Republicans—Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Couzens, Cummins, Ernst, Frazier, Gooding, Harrell, Howell, Johnson of California, La Follette, McKinley, McNary, Norbeck and Norris—16.

Democrats—Ashurst, Copeland, Dill, Ferris, Glass, Harris, Jones of New Mexico, Kendrick, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Ransdell, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Swanson, Tamm, Walsh of Massachusetts and Walsh of Montana—20.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead—1.

Pairs were announced as follows: Shipstead (Rep.), Missouri, for, with Ralston (Dem.), Indiana, against; Moses (Rep.), New Hampshire, for, with Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, against; Stephens (Dem.), Mississippi, for, with Johnson (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, against.

Sensors absent and unpaired were: Elkins, West Virginia; Lenroot, Wisconsin; and Greene, Vermont. Republicans, and Reed (Dem.) of Missouri.

Enjoys Solving Mysteries, Girl Clairvoyant Says

Eugene Dennis, on First Visit Here, Impresses Reporter With Demonstrations of Her Powers — Says She Does Not Understand Her Strange Gift.

EUGENE DENNIS

It's nice to be able to read the future and to know the secret past. Eugene Dennis, the Kansas girl clairvoyant, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today. Also it's a fine thing to be able to find lost articles and to solve baffling mysteries in crime. "But those aren't accomplishments," she added, "for which the modern young man is looking in a wife."

Consequently this attractive 19-year-old girl, now paying her first visit to St. Louis as the guest of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Akers, 748, Interdiversity University City, is "heart whole and fancy free." Friends in her life have been many, of whom there is none.

In itself that is as startling as Eugene's own successes in the strange field of second-sight, where at least a part of her seems to have its being. Of graceful, rounded form, she is tall, a broad-shouldered and athletic beauty of the corn-belt. Bobbed brown curls are parted at the side and brushed gracefully over a high and thoughtful brow. Large soft and luminous eyes lie like amber pools below high arched eyebrows. There are a straight, medium nose with well-modeled nostrils, a large cupid's bow mouth, and large even, pearly teeth. Her skin has the glow of health and is without make-up. In the fullness of the left cheek the suggestion of a dimple plays. Her dress of ecru, was emphatically feminine, with frills and ruffles and cascades of heavy ecru lace.

Why She Has No Woovers. And this is the girl who has no woovers.

"Because," she said, "when the boys get serious, I just can't tell them about someone else they're serious about. They respect me then, but they're not sentimental. I have a long friendship but that is the end of it. I'd rather have just friends. I have never been in love, you see."

Here is a strange gift. Frankly, she says she does not understand it herself. "I just know things," she stated. "I always have, since I was 2 years old. In New York the Psychic Research Investigators had a system by which they measured the electricity in my body. They found there was less when I gave a demonstration. It seemed to flow out. But really it just seems as if I remembered things. Like, maybe, you'd forget my name—just couldn't think of it." (That had happened to the reporter.) "And then on the street car it suddenly came to you. It's like remembering a memory."

In this conversation Eugene was nervous. One foot tapped the air. Muscles of her right arm involuntarily contracted. She spoke in sentences broken by quick, nervous breathing. Later, in demonstration, she was at ease, relaxed, lying back in her chair with arms clasped at the back of her head, her eyes wide open, but thoughtfully non-observant. "The doctors tell me," she had said, "that when these things come to me I am near-sighted, though otherwise my eyes are normal."

Tells of Her Experiences. "I always seem to know things. It began by my telling things about my father, who was a pattern maker, things he couldn't believe I knew. He didn't like it. Then I got to finding things that were lost. It would come to me where they were. When I was 9 my mother called in the preacher about it. He couldn't explain more than we. Sometimes I'd tell things about our visitors. It wasn't always tactful. But it was amusing. "Then we moved from Topeka to Atchison. I started in high school. I was kind of ashamed and wanted to keep my observations secret. But our neighbor lost some money and I saw where it was and mother told her. She had a daughter who was a high school senior. I was a freshman. That girl told it around in school. Then E. Howe sent his son, Gene, out, and he wrote a piece about me. He called me the 'mystery girl.' The boys all seemed to shun me after that. I went to lots of parties while I was in high school, but I never had a date."

Eugene is not above a little honest fakery. "The first time I ever went out with a boy he was an automobile salesman who asked to take me home from a party. Instead he started out a country road. 'Be sure it's a dark one,' I said, but I was scared. I saw cars parked along the road. Finally he pulled up at one and said: 'Frightened One Admirer.' "Are you sure it's dark here?" I asked him.

"He didn't know what to make of me. Why?" he asked. "Because," I answered, "I'm awful anxious to see my spirits. They have been trying to tell me something."

"Let's go home," he said, and he turned right around. Newspapers told Eugene's stories to the world. Letters poured in upon her. The day before Christmas, 1931, she received 819 registered letters. Then came her visit to New York a year ago. New York police officials quizzed her regarding murder mysteries. Her answers, they reported, were re-exactly the conversation. Another test. He took from his memory of newspaper headlines a certain name connected with a set of facts with which he was not conversant. That name he kept secret, though he mentioned the character of the episode. As she described locations and individuals he made notes. Sometimes, "Is that right?" she would ask. He could not say, not knowing. She spelled out names which seemed to come to her.

Fakery Not Suggested. There was nothing of fakery suggested in her appearance, in her attitude or in her answers. From these answers Mr. Akers, who was in the room recognized the incident of which she was being asked. Collusion, or fakery would at once have hid that fact. Everything was open, disingenuous, frank. Eugene did seem to be trying to remember things.

In the Post-Dispatch office later notes of her answers to the questions were submitted to reporters who had investigated the facts. In the letters of two names, they they checked with accuracy.

Yet, to be candid, she had not told anything which she might not have discovered from reading or questioning about the matter. "Who will be St. Louis' next Mayor?" she was finally asked. "Isn't there a man in office now, who is big and jolly? He's a good executive and has lots of friends. He has started something and people will want to go through with it."

Prediction as to Mayoralty. "His principal opponent will be a younger man, of a different nationality, with an unusual name. He is medium tall, and nice-looking, not a politician, but a speech-maker. The man now in office will be re-elected by a large majority, because there are few who don't like him and nobody gets mad at him. There is some Judge, somewhere, too. But he doesn't want the job. He'll be in the fight, however."

And with that Eugene Dennis brought to end her disclosures. A wide reader with a good memory, a clever cross-examiner, might without great difficulty have told almost as much as she. But her simple unaffectedness and unpolished naivete disarmed the reporter. "And how," he asked himself as he returned into the night, "did she ever know of what my friend in a chance meeting said to me?"

Cod Liver Oil in Sugar Coated Tablets For Puny Kids

Forget the nasty tasting, stomach upsetting cod liver oil and give the thin, puny, underdeveloped children McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets if you want to give them a good appetite and put pounds of good, healthy flesh on their bones. Doctors know all about them and so does Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, drug stores, Ederle Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., and all good pharmacists all over America, for they are in great demand, because they are not laggards but show results in a few days.

They are not expensive either—60 tablets—60 cents and children take them like candy.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

Mothers, Do This—

When the Children Cough, Rub Musterole on Throats and Chests

No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And that's when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief. It does not blister. As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Thousands of mothers know it. You should keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuritis, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica, backache, joint, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frostbite and sores of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Better Than Calomel

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "biliousness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. When you feel "lumpy" and "heavy," when your "clear" clouded brain and "stuck up" the entire life and life.

DEATH ENDS HIS LONG NEWSPAPER CAREER

JOHN B. HENDRICKS

J. B. HENDRICKS, OF POST-DISPATCH, DEAD

In Newspaper Work Here for More Than 26 Years—Ill Since Last Spring.

John B. Hendricks, 44 years old, a member of the Post-Dispatch news staff, and in newspaper work in St. Louis for more than 26 years, died at 10:40 last night at his home, 3924 A St. Louis, avenue, from heart disease. He had been ill since last spring. An attack of coughing preceded his death.

He was a native of St. Louis, and as a youth had stage ambitions, which he did not pursue beyond the semi-professional work of the summer garden shows of the time. In 1898 he went to work as a reporter for the St. Louis Star-Sayings, and was with that paper several years, becoming police reporter at the Four Courts Building, where the criminal courts, as well as Police Headquarters, were located.

Became Police Reporter. He went later to the staff of the St. Louis Republic, doing both police and general reporting. More than 20 years ago he became police reporter for the Post-Dispatch, and he remained in this position, at the Four Courts and later at the present headquarters' building, until seven years ago.

Since leaving headquarters, he had worked on varied assignments in the office, but had given special attention to matter bearing on police work, where his long experience made him particularly valuable.

His last work for the Post-Dispatch was a series of articles on the police methods of Eastern cities, for which he obtained his material by visits to the police departments of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. His inquiry related especially to the methods used by the police in handling criminal gangs, which he found to exist in other cities very much as was the case in St. Louis.

Suffered Heart Weakness. The articles were published last March and early in April. Soon after this he relapsed into a condition of heart weakness from which he had suffered the previous summer, and he was never able to return to active work, though he could walk about his home and went downtown occasionally.

He was married in February, 1935, to Miss Alberta Landstetter, Mrs. Hendricks and his two sisters, living in New York, survive him. A niece and two nephews of Mrs. Hendricks, Adele, William and John Schmidt, have made their home with Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning at St. Matthew's Catholic Church, Sarah street and Kennerly avenue, and burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

MOVIE MANAGER AND OPERATOR HELD UP AND ROBBED OF $212

Three masked highwaymen held up Thomas Curley, manager of the Queens Theater, 4700 Maffitt avenue, shortly before last midnight, and took $212 in cash, the evening's receipts of the theater.

Curley had left the theater in his automobile with Walter Schaeper of 4719 Ashland avenue, his moving picture operator. As they stopped at Schaeper's home, another car drew up behind and three men jumped out, each with a revolver, compelling the two men to lie on the floor of the automobile.

The robbers apparently had followed from the theater. "Hand over the money, Mr. Showman," the leader said, and Curley produced a sack containing $25 in change. The robber threatened him and he produced a second package containing $187 in currency.

While Curley and Schaeper lay in the automobile, the robbers drove off in their machine. Curley lives at 4640 Kennerly avenue.

NEW ORDINANCES ON TAXICAB REGULATIONS

Nine Measures Being Prepared to Cure Defects in Present City Laws.

Nine proposed ordinances regulating taxicabs and service cars are being prepared by the City Council's office to replace the present taxicab ordinance, which is but infrequently enforced because parts of it have been held invalid.

Separate bills are being prepared so that should any one of the regulations later be held invalid it will in no way affect the other ordinances. The new bills, which will be submitted to the Board of Aldermen tomorrow, will embody the regulations of the present ordinance, with two additions.

The proposed new regulations are:

One requiring the execution of a $10,000 liability bond by each service car operator to protect against loss of life, personal injury or property damage. The ordinance, as drafted, provides that not more than $10,000 shall be paid as damages in any one accident and not more than $5000 to any individual.

Would Control Taxicab Stands. One authorizing the Traffic Council to establish taxicab stands in spaces adjacent to public parks, public buildings, railroad stations, hotels, restaurants, theaters and other places of public gathering. In the present ordinance is an invalid clause which authorized the Board of Public Service, at its discretion, to issue parking permits to individual companies. Under the proposed ordinance, the Council can open spaces to taxicabs for parking regardless of ownership.

The new bills also include an ordinance requiring a $10 license fee for each taxicab, a regulation which was in the present ordinance and held unconstitutional. Associate City Counselor Nolan, who is preparing the new bills, said today that it was ruled invalid because the State law did not authorize such a tax, but that since the ruling the State law has been changed.

Clauses of the present ordinance repeated. In the proposed ordinance include one providing for the physical examination, investigation of character and licensing of chauffeurs; one fixing the maximum rates to be charged and requiring meters for cabs operated on the mileage basis; and one providing a penalty of from $25 to $500 for violation of any of the regulations.

Bond Clause Once Defeated. The ordinance requiring bond for service car operators was submitted to the Board of Aldermen once before, and defeated, after a member argued it was too favorable to the street car company. Nolan contends it is necessary because of the many accidents in which service cars figure and the difficulty of fixing responsibility on an impetuous service driver.

TRIAL OF 17 INDICTED IN JACK DANIEL CASE CONTINUED Government Desires to Wait Until Grand Jury Concludes

The trial of 17 persons indicted on charges of conspiracy in the "milking" of whisky barrels in the Jack Daniel warehouse, was continued until next term of court by Federal Judge Davis on a Government motion when the cases were called for trial today.

It was explained that the Government wished to wait until the Federal grand jury concluded the investigation of the case which is still in progress. None of the witnesses or defendants were subpoenaed for today. The defendants include George Renuau, millionaire bootlegger of Cincinnati, his wife, and William J. Kinney, a Deputy Internal Revenue Collector, of St. Louis.

The Government was also granted a continuance until next term of the case of Rabbi Jacob J. Grodsky of 1508 Wash street, charged in an indictment with the illegal sale of sacramental wine.

MOVE TO KILL CHILD LABOR LAW DENOUNCED IN SENATE Walsh of Montana Says Such Measures Do Not Infringe Sanctity of Home.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Existence of a "well organized and liberally financed" movement to defeat ratification of the Child Labor amendment was charged today in the Senate by Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana.

Strengthened by the result of the test vote in Massachusetts he said, opponents of the amendment have been widely disseminating press matter "along the line of what passed for argument in the campaign in that State."

"If congressional legislation dealing with the subject is an unwarrantable interference with parental control, Senator Walsh argued, 'equally so must be legislation by the State.'"

"The real answer," he continued, "is that the whole civilized world has arrived at the conviction that child labor laws constitute no invasion of the sanctity of the home."

KIRBY INDICTED FOR FRAUD Deposed Head of $40,000,000 Cleveland Concern Named.

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 8.—Federal and County grand juries investigating the Cleveland Discount Co., each returned indictments today charging misuse of the mails against Josiah Kirby, deposed president of the $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 concern that has been in the hands of receivers for nearly two years.

Kirby, now a resident of California, is believed to be in Pennsylvania.

to have lived in Atlanta, was found this morning in the backyard of a negro house. The ax was near the body. P. L. James, said to be a cousin, identified an automobile, found in a nearby alley, as the property of Fred James. The police said the license on the car and another inside were not issued to Fred James, according to records.

CLINICAL CAP GIVEN COUSIN BY ANOTHER

Story of Relatives Who Don't Care Much About Each
Other Revealed in Court.

The spectacle of relatives who didn't care about each other was presented in Police Court yesterday. This situation was exemplified by a gauze headpiece of bandages, completely encircling the skull, which one of the cousins wore. For, ridiculous as it may seem, these unaffected kinmen were cousins. To be precise, the clinical cap had been adjusted because one cousin had struck the other with some not too slender object.

The wearer of the covering denoting cousinly consideration was Martin Knopf of 1509 Angelrod street, and his cousin was Steve Strinini, who resides at 2016 New-house avenue.

Knopf, recipient of the cousinly caress, was the first to take the witness stand. Last Friday, Cuz Strinini, accompanied by two others, came to his home, and Cuz Strinini, with the aforementioned but unknown object, crowned Knopf a Knight of the Dispensary. Defendant's Version of Case.

Knopf's tale unfolded. Cousin Strinini took the witness stand. He related that the cousinly difficulty dated back to New Year's eve. On that festive evening, he said, Knopf and Knopf's three brothers beat up Strinini's brother so badly that Strinini "couldn't identify him." Strinini then was informed, he told the court, that he was next in line for kindred caresses.

So Strinini, wishing to learn just what he might expect in the way of physical defacement, gathered two of his friends to his side, and on last Friday made the rounds of the Knopf's. The three entered the Knopf home. That Knopf chased them away at the point of a butcher knife. The three entered the third Knopf home. That Knopf chased them away at the point of a butcher knife.

Then they arrived at the home of Martin Knopf. That Knopf, as Strinini tells it, the tabby, but instead of meeting them with a butcher knife, lifted a goblet above his head instead. And one of Strinini's friends—no Strinini, said Strinini—hit Knopf over the head with the aforementioned indefinite object.

Cousin Strinini Fined $10. And Judge Matthews his Strinini for $10 and costs. But before saying so, the Judge asked Strinini if he had ever read the story of the barber and his brothers, a story told in the "Arabian Nights." Strinini said he hadn't. Judge Matthews said he didn't guess it made much difference. If the reader is 21 he can read it in Sir Richard Burton's translation.

$100,000 TREASURE IN HOUSE

Woman Fights to Prevent Removal of Father's Body From Place.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Gold, jewelry, bank books, deeds and bonds with a value of more than $100,000, were found by the police in the dilapidated house at No. 123 Madison street, where Mary Zunino, 50, fought three policemen in an attempt to prevent the removal of the body of her father, John B. Zunino, 85, who had died a few hours before.

In one of the rooms police found yesterday a can containing $45 in gold coins. Hidden near was a large quantity of jewelry. Deeds of three large Hoboken tenements, three bank books, Liberty Bonds and other securities also were discovered.

Zunino became ill Tuesday night and the daughter sent for Father Camillus of St. Francis Church, who administered the last rites. He reported the case to the police. Fathermen were forced to knock down two doors before they could enter the house.

BAKER ON THE WORLD COURT

Willing to Abandon Party to Join One Pledged to World Peace.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 8.—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in Woodrow Wilson's Cabinet, is willing to abandon his party and sever all political connections to join any whose avowed purpose is world peace, he declared in an address here last night.

If the day of such things were not past, Baker said, he would head an army to Washington and camp outside the Senate until the World Court plan has been approved. "Write to your Senators demanding support of Secretary Hughes' World Court plan," he urged. "Hughes is our greatest living statesman and best lawyer. Later on we can join the league; we will join the league, you may be sure. But let us get into the World Court now."

TALKS ON BUSINESS OUTLOOK

William McChesney Martin, speaking on the Federal Reserve system and the business outlook for 1925, addressed members of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday at a luncheon meeting in the organization's dining room, 311 Locust street.

In the absence of Otto Rothfeld, member of the Legislative Council, Bombay, India, who was unable to reach St. Louis in time for the meeting, the Rev. T. J. Claggett, brother of the Rev. W. H. Claggett, 5123 Bates avenue, spoke on conditions in India as he found them during a two years' stay there.

LEGISLATORS' RELATIVES TO CONTINUE ON STATE PAYROLL

Caucus of House Republicans at Jefferson City Agrees to Name 100 Appointees.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 8.—Republicans in the House resumed their organization caucus yesterday afternoon, following the brief opening session of the House, and proceeded to apportion the House patronage, including appointment of more than 100 clerks, stenographers, janitors and pages, among the Republican members.

The Democratic delegation was allotted no clerk appointments, but was permitted to appoint two stenographers and one page.

More clerks are to be appointed, but Republican members indicated the number would not exceed 150.

Under the resolution adopted in the caucus, each Republican will appoint a clerk for himself. As the antinepotism amendment to the Constitution, adopted last February, still is ineffective, due to lack of enabling legislation for enforcement, the legislators will be permitted to follow the practice of appointing relatives.

The Republicans agreed on the appointment of 22 assistant doorkeepers, janitors, sweepers and cleaners, 12 stenographers and seven pages.

The caucus voted to make the Daily Post, a Jefferson City newspaper, the official organ for publication of the proceedings of the House. The Post is published by Heber Nations, former State Labor Commissioner, who is under indictment in St. Louis in connection with a Federal grand jury investigation of the sale there of "protected beer."

The Republican House caucus on legislative program will not be held until after Jan. 12.

DEMANDS RETRACTION OF STORY IN FORD'S WEEKLY

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Formal demand for retraction of certain statements alleged to have been made in Henry Ford's publication, the Dearborn Independent, has been made by Aaron Sapiro, counsel for several farmers' co-operative organizations, preliminary to a projected libel suit for $1,000,000 against Ford.

The attorney named E. G. Leibold, vice president and treasurer of the Dearborn Publication Co., W. J. Cameron, editor, and the Ford Motor Co.

Sapiro alleged his name was linked in a series of articles with those of Julius Rosenwald, Otto Kahn, Bernard Baruch, Albert Lasker and E. Myer Jr., in charging him with participation in an alleged Jewish conspiracy to control American agriculture, "or" to organize the farmers of America in the interests of communism.

Ford was accused by Sapiro of approving "an attempt to destroy my participation in the co-operative marketing movement."

The attorney has been counsel for numerous co-operative organizations, notably in California. It was for a time counsel for the American Farm Bureau Federation and is attorney for co-operative associations led by Walton Petzet, formerly of Texas; William Settle, of Indiana and Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois.

the deposit but that the conversion of the securities was slow. The State is receiving between $1000 and $1500 a month interest on the securities at Springfield. This is being applied on the deposit while the principal of the securities remains the same.

There has seemed to be a possibility that the inquiry might delay the induction into office Monday of State Treasurer Thompson, who in November was elected State Auditor. A question raised by Senators in discussions of the resolution was whether U. Eugene Stephens, newly elected State Treasurer, would receipt for this money shown on the books to be in the Treasury but which the Treasurer cannot get, and if he did receipt for it, whether he would be liable on his bond for any portion lost.

This brought up the question of whether Thompson could take over his new office if he could not relinquish his old one.

Stephens said today that, in taking over the State Treasurer's office, he would receipt only for the cash turned over to him, and for securities satisfactory to him.

Holland Bank Case.

The largest State deposit in a defunct bank is in the Holland Bank in Springfield, which failed a year ago, at which time the State had on deposit there $1,025,000, protected by securities. In a year a portion of these securities has been sold and the proceeds applied to meet the deposit, reducing the amount owing to the State to between $400,000 and $500,000.

Recently the disposal of the securities, many of which were real estate mortgages, has been extremely slow, and, according to information which has reached Senator Painter, there is no indication of the length of time that will be required to get in the money or whether it can ever be obtained in full. Painter said his information was that all of the securities had been disposed of and that there remained slow and doubtful paper.

Under the Missouri law, Gov. Hyde, Attorney-General Barrett and State Treasurer Thompson were required to pass upon the sufficiency of the security given by all State depositories to protect State funds, the law specifically setting out the amount of security which should be given.

In the case of the Holland Bank, the State holds a bond for $1,000,000 given by five officers of the bank. This bond is said to be valueless, the signers having insufficient assets after the failure of the bank to meet it.

Senator Painter today said that every effort would be made to have the Special Committee complete its work this week and to settle all disputed questions before the time came for Treasurer Thompson to turn his office over to Stephens.

"This is really a very serious situation," Painter said. "The law seeks to place the utmost safeguards around the State deposits. It contemplates that the State shall be secured by a good margin for its deposits. It contemplates that only gilt-edged securities shall be accepted."

"The State is not engaged in the real estate loan business. Every cent in its Treasury is supposed to be at all times subject to check by the State Treasurer on appropriations made by the Legislature. It is to be supposed that securities for State deposits would be only such securities as could be instantly converted into cash if a bank should fail."

"When securities are accepted which do not meet these requirements, somebody must be responsible. It is the purpose of the Senate to place this responsibility, and if there is financial liability by those responsible, to institute the necessary proceedings to obtain the money due the State."

"Personally I cannot understand how the incoming Treasurer can receipt for the State monies shown by the books to be in the Treasury when several hundred thousand dollars of that amount is represented only by securities of questionable value. If he does receipt for the full amount, would he not be liable on his bond for any portion that could not be collected? These are all questions which we hope the committee will be able to pass upon in time to make a complete report by the end of the week."

Attorney-General Barrett, one of the State officials having supervision of the letting of State funds, today said that, from information he had received from Treasurer Thompson, he was confident the State could suffer no losses of deposits in the defunct bank. "The State Treasurer informs me that the value of the securities is at least $100,000 more than the State deposits," Barrett said, "but even if he is mistaken the State would not lose because the State is a preferred creditor."

Barrett said that neither he nor Gov. Hyde had passed upon the value of the securities for State deposits, that having been decided by the State Treasurer, but that he and the Governor, through personal representatives, had checked over all securities and examined abstracts of title. Barrett said that, in his opinion, no State officer would be liable on his bond even if there was a loss to the State.

ELECTION BOARD

In Statement Telling Why He Will Not File Contest, He Cites Alleged Carelessness.

POINTS TO USE OF
SACKS AT POLLS

Says Gov. Hyde Failed to Name Upstanding Democrats on Board—Comment by Members.

Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, defeated Democratic nominee for Governor, issued a statement from his home in Buncheon yesterday, explaining why he would not contest the election of Governor-elect Baker and sharply criticizing the members of the Election Board here, particularly James Y. Player and Edward S. Lewis, Democratic members.

He referred to Baker as a man of "integrity and high purpose" and said he would support his administration in all matters which, in his judgment, promised for the general welfare of the people.

Discussing the election in St. Louis, he said he had found that the Election Commissioners here had so carelessly performed their duties that in 1911 precincts they had failed to provide sufficient ballot boxes and open sacks were employed. He charged that the carelessness was the direct result of the unfair conduct of Gov. Hyde in not naming "real, upstanding and active Democrats as representatives of the party, as the law clearly intends, as commissioners."

Comment by Lewis.

Lewis said today that he "did not like to see a beaten man squall" and that the election had been fair and honest. He said the reflection upon himself and Player was unwarranted and that he had been sorely disappointed at Dr. Nelson's defeat.

Player said Dr. Nelson had a "square deal" and that "if he had made a few speeches to upstanding Democrats in St. Louis during the campaign the result might have been different. He took a long time to find out he wasn't elected."

John B. Edwards, Republican, chairman of the board, said that in visiting precincts all day he saw only three occasions where sacks were used and immediately stopped it. He said the boxes provided would contain 1000 properly folded ballots and that the officials were informed the sacks were for use only after the ballots had been counted after the close of the polls. The ballots were then to be sealed in the sacks with a metal clasp, placed in the boxes and taken to the City Hall to be filed.

The statement, addressed to the "Democrats of Missouri," follows: Having been the nominees for Governor at the November election and expressing confidence to me from almost every county in the State that the vote in St. Louis was so overwhelmingly against us as to indicate fraud or illegal voting and demanding that I investigate the matter and contest the election, I feel that some statement from me should be made covering the situation.

For some weeks after the election, I was of the opinion that these expressions were the result of the disappointment of my personal and political friends in the State, but these demands continued.

I had a number of conferences with leading Democrats in various parts of the State, and especially in Kansas City and St. Louis, which resulted in the agreement that I was to make and report to the conference. It was generally claimed that there was a large negro vote in the city of St. Louis, that had drifted in from the South, and that there was also a very large number of foreigners that voted there on their first papers and that this vote was cast solidly for my opponent.

In a large number of precincts in the City of St. Louis the vote was almost solid against us and in many of these precincts there were large numbers of negroes and foreigners. An investigation of the records, however, failed to disclose anything definite as to the qualifications of the voters. In many precincts in St. Louis the Democrats really had no representation at the election, so that I could obtain little information other than what was disclosed on the face of the poll books.

Annals Election Officials.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

An Ex-Conductor's Opinion of Street-Car Heating.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In an editorial in a recent Post-Dispatch you discuss the inefficiency of street-car heating on United Railways lines in St. Louis. You seem to base your criticism of the U. R. heating system on a letter written by a gentleman some time ago and published in the Post-Dispatch, the writer of which claims to have ridden on all the street cars of the principal cities of the country.

This gentleman, let me say, has misinformed you regarding street-car heating systems in other cities. There are three systems used in heating cars, viz.: The electric, hot water and hot air. St. Louis cars are heated by hot air, when they are heated. Indianapolis, Ind., uses the hot-water system. The latter system uses stoves and burn either coke or anthracite coal.

It is not true, as the writer of the letter referred to asserts, that the electric system is the best system. After two years' experience on street cars, I would prefer the hot-water heating; it seems to be less affected by the continual use of the doors.

The hot-air system is adequate to the U. R. cars if the fire is kept going over night in cold weather or kindled early enough at the barns for the cars to heat before taken out for the run. It is a shame and disgrace to the management of any street car system that those responsible for the comfort of passengers are so indifferent to public appeal made from time to time through the St. Louis press, and which appeal certainly comes to their knowledge.

It seems to me that pressure could be brought to bear on the Board of Health for that body to see that street cars are properly heated and the danger to public health thereby lessened. An incident occurred the other morning on an Olive car that illustrates how warm the cars are early in the morning, or rather how warm they are not. The aisle was crowded next to the door by passengers wanting off an eastbound car at Grand. A passenger standing behind others remarked, "Let me off; I want to get warm."

Subways for Pedestrians.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In the Post-Dispatch of January 2 you have an editorial on "Unsafe Safety Zones," in which is quoted a suggestion by a Detroit traffic commission for subways from sidewalk to sidewalk. Suppose these subways be extended from sidewalks to sidewalk under all four crossings with stairways at appropriate points to safety zones. Traffic could be speeded up and danger to pedestrians would be ended. Elevated sidewalks have been suggested for the same purpose, but are objectionable for several reasons.

If the subway be extended as outlined above, it seems instead the most practical solution that has been offered of the problem of street crossing by pedestrians in the congested district and elsewhere at dangerous street intersections.

Traffic Regulation Suggestions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT SEEMS to me there are a number of traffic regulations of a very simple nature that would result in less violations of the law, either unintentionally or otherwise. Why not have emphatic and legible stop signs, instead of a small faded one, and in a place where even the uninitiated cannot fail to see it? It is unreasonable to expect a driver to see them all when located amongst other more conspicuous signs. Why not paint across the pavement large STOP signs? Also why not stop the prevalent cut-the-corner practice, so common amongst local drivers, by putting buttons at the center of street intersections around which all drivers must go when making right or left hand turns and then enforce the rule?

It also seems to me quite a number of the new stop and go signals are in rather unimportant locations, to the neglect of other much more important ones. Also why the necessity of lights on the auto when regularly parked at the curb after dark, either singly or with numerous other cars?

Fewer laws to confuse the driver, but with common-sense ones, and with the enforcement of them upon all alike, instead of a great percentage of violators getting off through having a pull of some sort, will go a long way toward settling the ever-increasing traffic problem.

CALIFORNIA.

Waiting for Compton Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT SEEMS to me that the United Railways should put more cars on the Compton line in the mornings between 7 and 9 o'clock. In the past three months we have to wait from 15 to 25 minutes for a car. I am not the only one; there are hundreds of others who suffer from this condition. No wonder the People's Motorbus Co. are doing big business; they render excellent service to the public.

M. SMITH.

DR. NELSON'S GOOD EXAMPLE.

Announcing his final decision not to file a contest for the governorship, Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, the Democratic candidate in the late campaign, offers a statement of his reasons which reflects credit upon his spirit and judgment.

Dr. Nelson cites the difficulties of contesting an election under the present law. Specific allegations of fraud or improper voting must be made on a mere surface examination. And while he finds surface indications of improprieties and fraudulent voting, the limited examination he could make renders it impossible for him to specify individual frauds. He refuses, therefore, to make general allegations and charges not supported by actual facts within his knowledge.

Another reason is the necessity of filing his charges with the General Assembly. He refuses, on the evidence which he has, to consume the time of the Legislature in trying to determine whether there is ground for a contest, and then, if ground is found, in investigating the election. He does not feel justified in trying up the Legislature on the superficial evidence which is at his command.

Dr. Nelson completely exonerates Governor-elect Baker of any reflection on his individual honesty and from any intimation that he personally participated in any wrongful act, and pledges to his administration all the co-operation and support in his power in all policies and measures for the welfare of the people.

The Democratic members of the Legislature, particularly in the Senate, where the Democrats have a majority, may well take a leaf from Dr. Nelson's statement. If they would make the public good the test of their support or opposition to the measures suggested by Governor-elect Baker or formulated by the administration and the Republican legislators, they would insure service to the State. The worst thing that could happen to the State in the division of power between the two houses would be the wrangling of partisans over politics.

The Democrats in the Legislature ought to co-operate heartily with the administration and with the Republican associates in all sound measures. On the other hand, in order to assure harmony and co-operation, the administration and the Republican legislators must divorce their work from merely partisan politics.

Any policy on the part of the administration designed merely to strengthen the party machine by appointments and by legislative acts would be fatal to harmonious co-operation and to beneficial action.

If Governor-elect Baker is wise, he will not fall into the mistake of Gov. Hyde of combining apparent measures of reform and economy with efforts to further party and personal advantage.

THOSE KANSAS JAILS.

United States District Attorney Curry has informed Judge Farris that Federal penitentiaries are so crowded it is almost impossible to find accommodations for prisoners. Indeed, the overflow has pretty well swamped several state prisons that lately have been requisitioned.

But what about all those jails that have been emptied by prohibition? Kansas, we have repeatedly been assured, is fairly peppered with dunces vile, silent and vacant, peopled only by the ghosts of far-off, evil days. Are not these asylums available, say, at good rentals which will enable Sunflower statisticians to cite still more convincing proof that prohibition pays?

HOW MUSSOLINI HAS BEGUN.

Five days ago Signor Mussolini gave Italian opinion 48 hours to regenerate itself and promised to assist in the regeneration with energetic measures of his own. To date this is what has happened:

Prefects throughout Italy have been instructed to break up all political parties of a "doubtful" character and close their meeting halls. The opposition press has been disposed of by forbidding the publication of any opposition press; in Milan, for example, the Giustizia came out on Monday with blank pages decorated by a few advertisements, and was promptly confiscated. Six hundred and fifty-five houses have been searched for Liberals who may be harboring suspicious thoughts. Signor Mussolini is being hurried along by the extremists of his party, and young Fascist march through the streets of Rome to celebrate his triumph.

LEGAL SENSE OR COMMON SENSE.

With becoming restraint and good humor the facts and difficulties of interallied war debts were reviewed in a special article in the Post-Dispatch by Francis W. Hirst, a high British authority on finance and economics. He explains that, while a restoration of the gold standard in England would help America by benefiting our foreign trade, it would aggravate the burden of the British war debt to us by raising the value of gold. In case of a future scarcity of gold it would make the burden intolerable. Yet the restoration of the gold standard would be welcomed by British business.

It is further explained in extenuation of Britain's position that she would not have had to borrow had she not loaned to her allies, that she should not be required to pay gold for goods received at inflated prices which are now priced much lower and that payment to us in gold is extremely difficult when we shut out her products by prohibitive tariffs. In consenting to the debt-refunding agreement, declares Hirst, the British Government was guided by financial, magnates and leading newspapers who held that British credit and dignity would suffer if the strict legal theory of the sanctity of the debts were contested.

All of which leads to the following interesting consideration:

Many insist that, to effect a general settlement of war debts, the views of corporation lawyers about holiness and sacredness of contracts should be diluted, and profane terrestrial considerations, such as the capacity of the debtor to pay, the willingness of the creditor to receive payments and, perhaps also, the relative sacrifices of men and common purposes in proportion to population and wealth, should be considered.

This is a bit hard on Mr. Hughes, who, corporation-lawyerlike, talks much of the holiness and sacredness of contracts, and whose celebrated New Haven speech advocating the ascertainment of Germany's capacity to pay is credited with having inspired the Dawes investigation and report. Now, since their prospects of reparations collections have been scaled down why not an investigation, on the Dawes plan principle, of the allies' capacity to pay?

Mr. Hirst believes that a new era of peace, security, good will and revived credit would be the reward of a policy of enlightened self-interest along the lines suggested. Are not Mr. Hughes' New Haven sentiments as applicable to our late allies as to Germany?

A CASE OF FOOTBALL "NERVES."

The nervous collapse of a boy named Crowley, a member of the famous Notre Dame football team, is something unusual, if not unique, in gridiron vicissitudes. Broken bones, wrenched ligaments and twisted joints are all a part of the day's work or play, but the nerves of these sturdy, virile youngsters, it was supposed, were invulnerable.

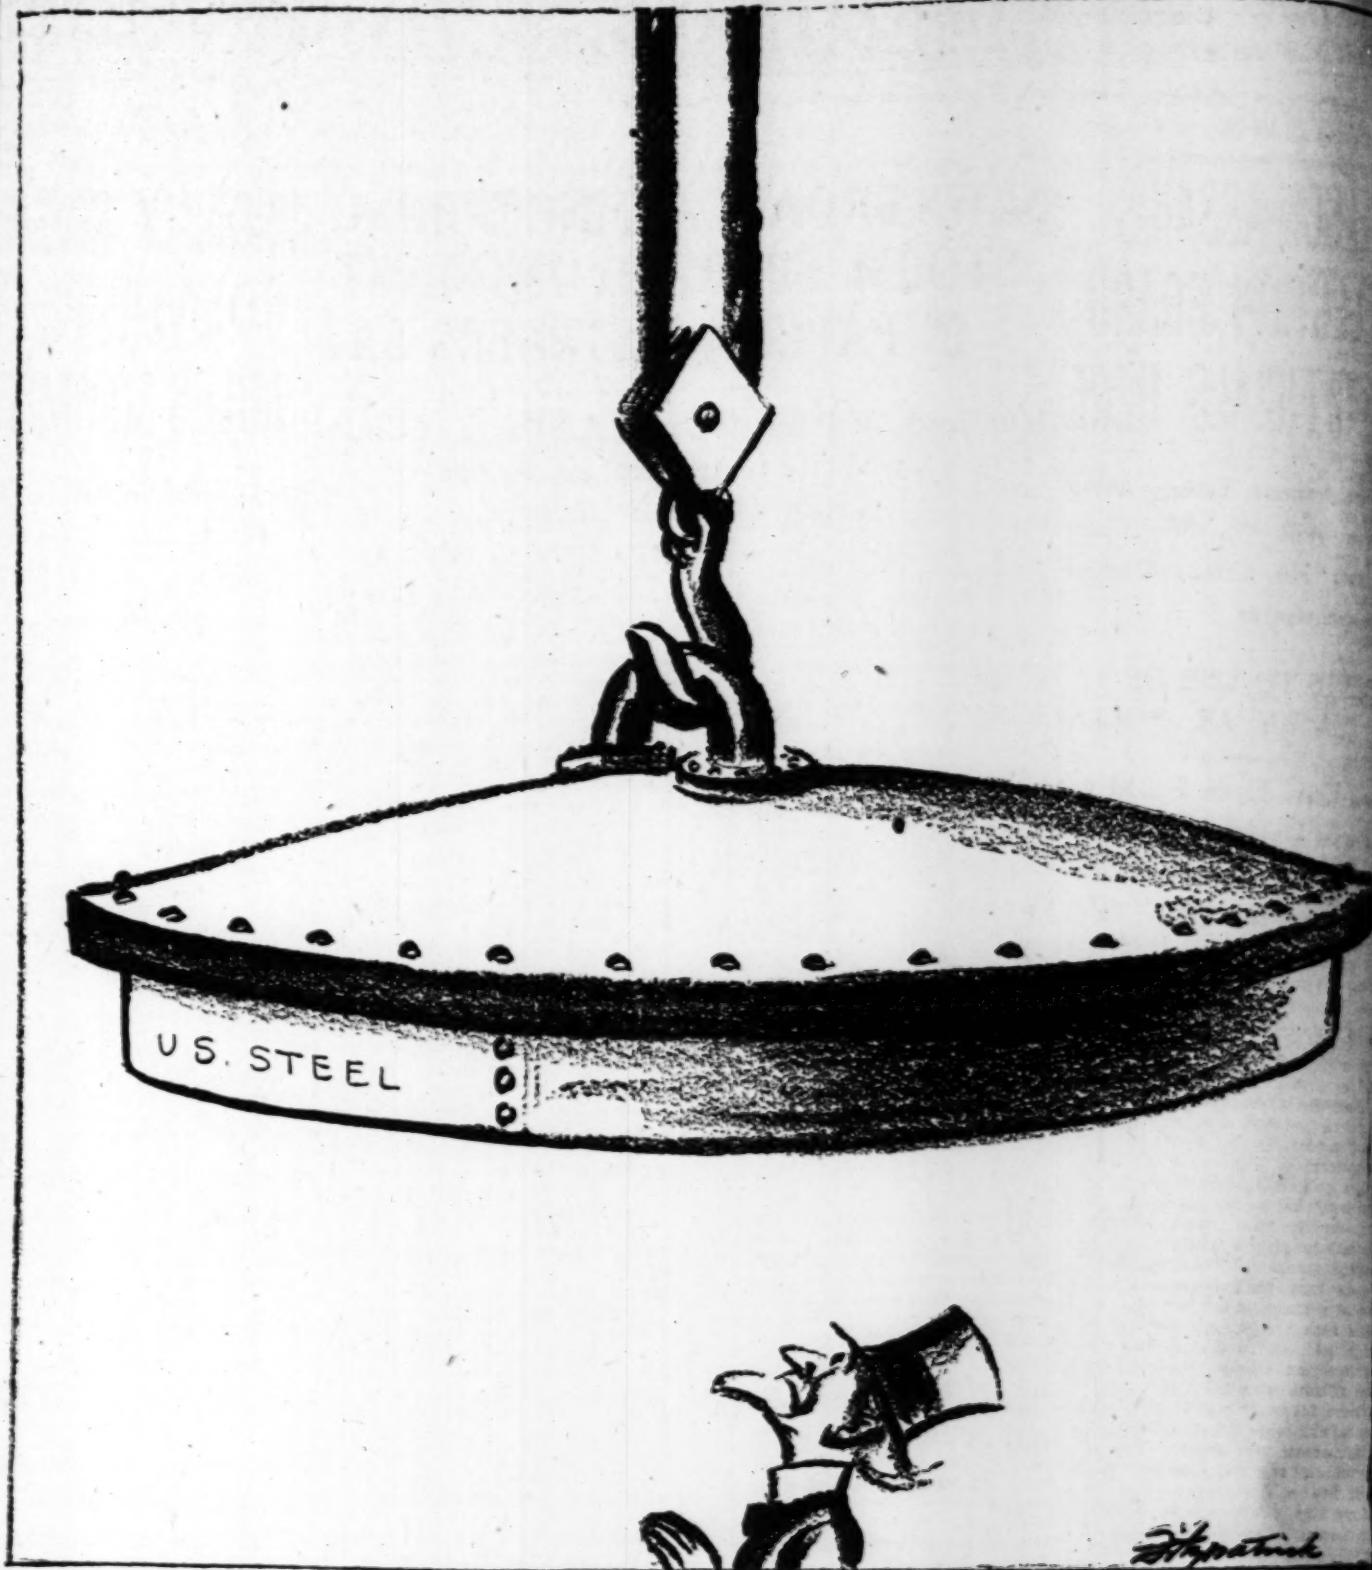

Does the case of Crowley lend point to the arguments advanced by Coach Voss of Michigan against inter-sectional games, and the prolonging of the season to undue lengths? Or will it serve to direct critical attention to the coaching system of Knute Rockne, who, as mentor at Notre Dame, has succeeded to the premiership once held by Yost and later by Haughton?

A master strategist and bewildering tactician, as any great coach must be, Rockne is pre-eminently the psychologist. This was evidenced in his article in the Post-Dispatch on Nov. 28, where he discussed the football upsets of the then current season. Football, he insisted, "is not a question of mechanics. Players and plays are only a certain per cent. The game demands more than any other an inspired mental attitude. . . . In the proper emotional state of team will do extraordinary things." On this hypothesis he explained Chicago's defeat of Illinois on the one dazzling Maroon day of an otherwise drab year and Minnesota's similar exceptional performance against the same Illinois eleven.

Under Rockne Notre Dame during the past season seems to have been on its temperamental toes all the time. Whenever the occasion required "extraordinary things" the "proper emotional state" was present. That such tension, if too long maintained or too frequently applied, might produce unhappy results can hardly be questioned. A little football is a corking thing. A short season, with only a few major games, as recommended by Yost, might well be considered.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

Socrates: I thought we got hold of a right interesting thing at the agora last night. You know everything turns out right for Coolidge, and people have begun wondering if he has not likely made a great discovery.

Socrates: No doubt. You are a very promising two-story thinker, my dear Glaucou. At any rate, it does seem that Coolidge is never in a hurry to solve any of his problems, being confident that Time will do so.

Thrasymachus: And does Time do so? Socrates: Yes. It has been pointed out that this was his policy at the time of the Boston police strike. He did nothing, and Time solved the problem for him. He followed this same course when he came into the trying responsibilities of the presidency, and Time served when nothing else could. He is doing this now. He has problems, but is doing nothing about them. Time will take care of them.

Glaucou: I like that. Socrates: So do I. In the debate last night Coolidge was kind enough to ask that I tell them why we have not always known that Time will solve our problems.

Glaucou: Aye, that is the point! Socrates: Quite so. You will have to hold on tight here, for we are going down deep. Time has always been ready to solve our problems, and somewhere in the backs of our heads there has always been a dim awareness that this is so. It is for this reason that we have made a virtue of patience. Is patience easy to practice?

Polemarchus: No. Socrates: Why? Thrasymachus: You will have to tell us, Socrates.

Socrates: Very well. Coolidge can do it because when someone rushes in upon him and tells him he must do something he stands there like the Sphinx and says nothing. If you could involve him in conversation you could make him move; but you can't involve him in conversation. Let us say the rest of us were like that. Say when we needed only to sit down and wait for things to work out we let our wives and our associates talk and answered them nothing. Do we not know that most of the disasters in which we have participated have been due to action when we should not have acted?

Glaucou: Of course we do. Socrates: Do we not also know that we did act because others said we must?

Glaucou: Certainly. Socrates: That is, they involved us in conversation.

Thrasymachus: Precisely. Socrates: There is not one of us but can recall occasions when, had we said nothing, we would not have acted and thus failed.

Thrasymachus: Not one, truly.

Socrates: But had, keeping silent, no doubt succeeded. Polemarchus: You have it again. Socrates: No, Polemarchus. It is Coolidge who has it. He has made a ridiculous discovery, and he is getting tremendous results.

Thrasymachus: You probably could not get him to admit it. Socrates: No, he would say nothing. Knowing full well that Time will make it all perfectly plain.

Thrasymachus: Some topwit, Coolidge! Socrates: Yes, Thrasymachus. Now let us try to recall our resolutions at New Year and see how we are doing.

A column conductor on the Hamburg Correspondent has compiled a number of opinions about the salient characteristics of men of different nationalities. Here are some of them:

"One American is a silent drinker. Two organize a limited company, and three enact the prohibition of alcohol."

"One Englishman is an eccentric creature. Two organize an athletic contest, and three make a great nation."

"One German is a pedant. Two found a brewery, and three make war."

"One Italian is a syndicalist. Two make a love tragedy and three march against Rome."

"One Russian represents a variety of political parties."

Judging by the smoke we had in St. Louis this morning, times are better. We suppose a real business boom would make breathing impossible. So we must choose between air and money, and you know what we will do about it.

The Federal courts to set aside unconstitutional legislation and gives most weight to the established practice in six of the thirteen states before the adoption of the Federal Constitution. Thus, this power was an invention of John Marshall. Another more astonishing fact is the slight reason which the Supreme Court has declared in Congress null and void. From 1789 to 1914 several hundreds of thousands of measures had been passed by the Federal legislature. Of that vast multitude the Supreme Court has set aside just 35!

MORE YARN, FEWER YARNS.

MR. MOHANDAS GANDHI, commonly called a mahatma, as president of the Indian National Congress, has shown himself not the vague, impracticable dreamer that some have thought him, but a particularly practical and efficient man of affairs.

Finding that the congress wanted him as its president, and wanted him to retain his very extraordinary leadership of the people, he assented; but stipulated as a condition of his doing so that a member of the congress should spin at least 2000 yards of yarn every month. And it is understood that they are going to do it. To spin more yarn and fewer yarns would be a profitable rule for some other assembly beside the Indian Congress; a fitting complement to the memorable advice given by one of our own commonwealths, to "more hogs and less hell."

REPEAL OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT.

From the Buffalo Evening Post.

PENDING proposals in Congress elsewhere to amend the Volstead act may be taken as a tacit admission on the part of its sponsors that it is not working as efficiently as it ought to work. An amendment now pending for the entire repeal of the prohibition bureau under the Treasury Department. When a statute obviously fails to do what was expected of it when it is found to abound in foolishness, consistent and impossible provisions, it is widely regarded and described as a time that it be repealed and that effort be made in another direction to cure what which the law failed to do.

BALLET

Large Audience Acclaims Mme. Pavlova in First of Three Farewell Performances.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

BEAUTY and grace thronged the eye last night at the Odeon, where Mme. Anna Pavlova and her company appeared in the first of three performances which are affirmed to mark the farewell appearance in this city of the exquisite prima ballerina. If Mme. Pavlova has actually resolved to retire, save for brief annual engagements in Paris and London, she will do so at the height of her powers, leaving unimpaired memories of her surpassing art.

A considerable part of the evening was devoted to a new ballet of four scenes, entitled "Don Quixote," in which Mme. Pavlova appeared first as Kitty, an innkeeper's daughter in Barcelona, and then as Dulcinea. This creation had little to do with the novel of Cervantes, save that the Knight of the Rueful Countenance occasionally stalked in the action, starting with moustache eyes. It was little more than a congeries of Spanish dances, full of dash and color, against splendid backgrounds and to an invigorating score by Ludwig Minkus. But the ballet suffered from an extremely feeble and undramatic plot.

In the first scene Don Quixote is reading a volume of romances, and springs up in a blaze of restoration to don his armor and set forth in quest of adventure, with his droll squire, Sancho Panza. M. Domoslavski was particularly effective as the gauche and wild-eyed knight.

Dulcinea Gives Him a Sash.

In the second scene he intervenes, sword in hand, to deliver Kitty from an abhorrent marriage with a nobleman, and to unite her with her true swain, the town barber. In the third, Don Quixote falls asleep on the verge of an enchanted forest. In the finale, he dreams that Dulcinea appears to him in a magic garden. He does battle with the Knight of the Silver Shield and is disarmed, but Dulcinea decorates the disgraced paladin with a silver sash.

There followed eight diversions, with Mme. Pavlova dancing with Laurent Novikov to Drigo's "Serenade," and appearing also with five male members of the troupe. In a fantasy entitled "Christmas," seven male dancers performed a vehement "Hopak" to music of Seroff. One of the most beautiful of these small pieces was a Czardas, after music by Grossman, which was danced by Mme. Stuart and M. Vaginiski.

Mlle. Hilda Butova and M. Ollendorf pleased in a dance to Johann Strauss' "Voices of Spring." An interpolated number, "Anitra's Dance," was tripped by Mme. Tamara Friede, who recently married a St. Louisian. Music was supplied by a small orchestra under the baton of Dr. Theodore Stier.

The audience was large.

Two major ballets were scheduled for today's matinee—"Magic Flute," featuring Mme. Butova, and "The Fishes," with Mme. Pavlova and M. Voliniski. Mme. Pavlova was able to give her famous version of Saint-Seans' "The Swan."

Tonight's program also promises two ballets, "Coppelia," and "Flora's Awakening." Mme. Pavlova has the leading role in the latter, and will also appear in the "Gavotte Pavlova" and a "Syrian Dance."

"7TH HEAVEN" EXTENDS STAY.

"Seventh Heaven," Austin Strong's play, being presented at the American Theater this week, will be continued over for a second week at that playhouse. Seats for next week were placed on sale this morning. St. Louis is the third city to see Helen Mencken and the New York-Chicago company in the play.

LIBERTY, Mo., Jan. 7.—With the announcement of a $100,000 building program, William Jewell College also has announced that it will enroll women at the opening of the fall semester in 1925. The college, however, will not be co-educational, but will maintain two coordinated colleges on the same campus under the same administration. The institutions plans to build at once three buildings, one of them a gymnasium, and is asking Kansas City to subscribe $75,000 toward their construction.

SERGEANT FROM ST. LOUIS CITED FOR BRAVERY IN RESCUE

James Collins, Tenth Infantry, Saved Life of Captain Whose Clothes Were on Fire.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—Sergeant James Collins of St. Louis, a member of the Quartermaster's Detachment, Tenth Infantry, Fort Thomas, has been cited by the War Department for bravery. The citation is the result of action on the part of Sgt. Collins in hastening to the rescue of Capt. Charles H. Sears, who was severely burned by the explosion of a phosphorus bomb on April 8 at Fort Thomas.

Capt. Sears is an expert chemist and was detailed by Col. Joseph P. Goin, commander of the Tenth Infantry, to examine a number of tear gas and phosphorus bombs shipped to the post several years ago. In experimenting with the bomb, Capt. Sears struck it with a hammer. He was working in the heating plant of the post and the phosphorus became ignited from hot coals and set fire to his clothes.

FIRST FEMININE SUPREME COURT MEETS IN TEXAS

Justices of Special Tribunal Meet in Consultation Room to Hear Arguments in Title Case.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 8.—The first woman Supreme Court in the United States sits here today. It comprises three Texas women whom Gov. Neff appointed to hear the case of Johnson vs. Darr, involving title to Woodmen of the World property in El Paso County.

The first sitting was robbed of much of the spectacular by the fact that the women did not actually sit on the Supreme Court bench to hear arguments, but gathered around a table in the consultation room to consider an application for a writ of error in the case. If the writ is granted the case will be brought up to the Supreme Court from the El Paso Court of Appeals.

The feminine court consists of Mrs. Hortense Ward Brazill, chief justice; Miss Ruth Brazill of Galveston, and Miss Hattie L. Hensberg of Dallas. Miss Nellie Robertson, County Attorney of Hood County, and Mrs. Edith Williams of Dallas were appointed, but declined because they were unable to meet the qualifications for sitting on the supreme bench.

Kahn's Estate to Widow.
By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—The estate of Congressman Julius Kahn, who died here Dec. 18, was bequeathed to his widow, Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, under the terms of the will filed for probate today. The will, which was drawn at Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1912, named Mrs. Kahn as executrix. The value of the estate was not disclosed.

'MYSTERY MAN' LOST IN U. S.
IDENTIFIED, TO BE DEPORTEDStranger, Held at Norfolk, Va., a Finnish Naturalized, Interpreter Asserts.

By the Associated Press.
NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 8.—His identity apparently established as a Finnish naturalized named Oskari Ja, from a village of the same name on the northern coast of Finland, Norfolk's "mystery man" today
assailed at a local mission the completion of arrangements for his deportation.

His apparent identification was made last night after he had broadcast words from an almost extinct
Finnish dialect, in an effort to locate among the listeners in some person who recognized the tongue.
Before any replies were received,
Frederick Faldon, a young Finn, followed the man to the mission and spoke to him in his native tongue.

In the conversation that followed,
Faldon said the man told him of having Leningrad on the steamship Riga, losing the crew and communication with the ship in an American port and wandering about on foot until he was picked up on Cape Charles by a man who brought him to Norfolk.

Oskari's wife, Faldon said, is in a city in Northern Russia, ignorant of the whereabouts of her husband.

Two of his sons are in Rome, and a third in Rhenishland, Germany, the interpreter said, where he represents Finnish business interests.

good citizens. The Legislature very promptly refused to entertain the contest.

"Cannot See Way Clear."
I do not want to ask a contest which would paralyze the General Assembly for weeks, and perhaps months, while it made a tedious and long-drawn-out inquiry as to the qualification of individual votes, without more definite proof that the votes were illegal and of sufficient number to justify a man of good conscience to accept the office after such investigation.

Many of my friends have insisted, and on persuasive grounds, that an investigation would show
enough illegal votes to change the results. If the contest could have been conducted before a judicial tribunal and without affecting the work of the General Assembly, the situation would have been different, but such is not the law in this State.

Therefore, in view of all of the facts and circumstances, I must say to the Democrats of the State that I cannot see my way clear to make a contest. A statement covering the situation could not well be made earlier, for the reasons that I have given, and I think I should further say that this is the only statement I have made relative to the situation and that I have had no part in,
or knowledge of, any other statement.

"Baker a Man of Integrity."
I further desire to say that I do not want anything in this statement to appear as a reflection upon Governor-elect Baker, or indicate that I think he was in any degree responsible for, or had any knowledge of, the casting of a single illegal vote.

It would be unfair to leave any stigma upon him personally, or any taint on his title to the high office of Governor, which he shortly will assume. He is a man of integrity and of high purpose. I concede his election and I shall support his administration in all matters that, in my judgment, promises for the general welfare and good of our people.

I tried very hard during the primary, and in the campaign preceding the general election, to conduct myself in such a way as to command the respect of the people of my native State. I regret my defeat more because of my loyal friends than on my own account, and I most heartily and sincerely express my thanks and appreciation for the loyal support and generous, kindly help
given to me throughout the entire State.

Message to Democrats.
To the Democrats of the State
let me urge that you do not lose heart. Our party has given to this State support, generation after the fairest and most economical government of any state in the Union. It is up to us to rebuild along fundamental lines. Mistakes were made and I admit my share and assume the responsibility.

I have not been and do not pretend to be a schooled politician, but I have learned one thing, namely, that we need better and more intensive organization, and no man in the State is more ready than myself to begin now to reorganize our forces, to revitalize our party and to restore that splendid militant spirit that for so many years not only gave it victory at the polls, but wrote a glorious history, that has become a part of the life and progress of our great State.

ATKESON SAYS HE'LL HOLD ON TO HIS JOB

Warehouse Commissioner, Refusing Second Resignation Request, Is Defiant.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 8.—William O. Atkeson, State Warehouse Commissioner, who has refused to accede to Gov. Hyde's demand for his resignation, although informed it was sought at the request of Governor-elect Baker, is here showing further fight, and today indicated he would carry his resistance into the Senate, which must confirm appointments.

"I worked for Baker, and I am not going to be thrown into the river now to make a Roman holiday for Hyde and Baker," Atkeson declared to the Post-Dispatch correspondent. "I don't owe Baker anything but he owes me everything. The 135 men in my department were working for him all the time and went down the line for Baker."

If the Senate is so inclined, it can refuse to help iron out the troubles within the Republican official family, and could confirm Atkeson's appointment, made in recess. This would enable Atkeson to serve out his term, which will expire in June, 1927.

Atkeson, a former Congressman, exhibited a letter he received yesterday from Hyde, renewing a demand for his resignation, first made last November. "Why any Republican should try to hold a political position after he knows he is not wanted is inexplicable upon any basis creditable to him," Hyde's letter stated. "I hope you will yet see the advisability of resigning, which I hereby request you to do."

In the course of a conference with Hyde here late in November the Governor called for Atkeson's resignation, stating it was at Baker's request, Atkeson said.

The commissioner later sent a letter to Hyde declining to resign, in which he stated Hyde could not remove him except for cause. "Why single yourself trying to help Baker?" Atkeson asked in the letter. "Do you owe more to Baker than to tried and trusted friends?"

"The water is too cold to jump in voluntarily with no help in sight," Atkeson stated. "I may be pushed in, but will scramble out with sorrow to those who pushed me."

Gov. Hyde today asked why Atkeson was "spending his time here on State pay when he was supposed to be in his office looking after the duties of his department?"

"It seems to me that would be sufficient cause for Governor-Baker to act when he becomes Governor," Hyde declared, "inasmuch as Atkeson declares he can be removed only for cause."

INHERITANCE, RETURNS TO WORKYoung Laborer, Only Heir to Estate of California Fruit Dealer, to Keep $120-a-Month Job.WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 8.—
Inheritance of $157,000 makes no difference in the life of William Tracey, a young deck hand on a Wilson line steamer plying between this city and Philadelphia. Having received a letter yesterday containing a check for his order for $117-000 and information that the remainder of his inheritance would be sent later, he deposited the check in a local bank and reported for duty last night as usual.The letter, from a firm of attorneys in Los Angeles notified Tracey, 97 that his father, James J. Tracey, 97 years old, a California fruit grower, had died and left him an estate valued at $157,000. The young man is the only survivor of the fruit grower, two sons having been killed in France in the war. He also was a member of the American Expeditionary Forces.Tracey is unmarried and said today that he planned to continue working as a deck hand as long as he could hold his job. The position, he said, pays him $120 a month, and he is contented and satisfied.SNORES BRING DIVORCE SUIT Wife, in Petition, Says She Was Unable to Sleep.Alleging that her husband, William Pohlman, 1117 St. Louis avenue, snored so violently every night that she could not sleep, Mrs. Mary Pohlman yesterday filed suit for a divorce. She claims that whenever she awakened him to get him to the stop snoring he abused her. She further alleges that he struck her and on Dec. 24 drove her from home. They were married Aug. 22
last. Mrs. Pohlman bases her suit on the ground of general indignities. She asks for alimony.MAN FOUND DEAD IN AREAWAY Body of John Coogan, 73, Found by Son.The body of John Coogan, 73 years old, was found at 9 a. m. yesterday in an areaway at 3715 Juniata street where he lived with his son, William E. Coogan. Coogan told the police he believed his father had wandered out to a second-floor porch and had fallen to the areaway below.MARX ABANDONS COALITION
He Now Would Form Non-Political Cabinet of Experts.BERLIN, Jan. 8.—Chancellor Marx has been forced to abandon his idea of forming a non-partisan cabinet and will inform President Ebert that the definite antagonism of Stresemann's German people's party to a government comprising the Bourgeoisie and Socialist parties disposes of all prospects of effecting a coalition which would have a majority in the Reichstag.
The Chancellor will now endeavor to form a cabinet of experts from the ranks of Government officials. These ministers would not be affiliated with any political party.Idaho Warden Gets Atlanta Job.
By the Associated Press.WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—John
Snook, Warden of the Idaho State Penitentiary, has been appointed by Attorney-General Stone as Warden of the Atlanta Federal Prison.
The Attorney-General was advised yesterday of Snook's acceptance. Stone said he expected to give the new Warden a free hand nates.C. F. & St. L. Price Too High.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 8.—
Citizens of Jacksonville, who held a conference yesterday to discuss purchase of the branch of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis Railroad between Havana and Jacksonville, exclusive of the Jacksonville terminal, returned dissatisfied with the price asked by the bondholders. Mayor E. E. Crabtree, spokesman, declared the bondholders ask $355,000. "This price is too much," he said. "If the bondholders are to sell the line for junk, it should be sold for junk prices."Everybody Likes

MILLER SPEAKS ON HONEST ELECTIONS

Mayorality Candidate Against Permitting Committee to Name Poll Officials.

The range of improper influence which politicians may bring to bear upon election results was discussed in an address by Victor J. Miller, former Police Board president and Republican candidate for Mayor, in an address before the Women's Chamber of Commerce today.

He paid a compliment to the present Election Board, although he did not specifically mention it, when he said "there has been no accusation in the past four years that our elections have been dishonest."

He scored the practice of permitting committees to name judges and clerks, which is prohibited by the present board, with a statement that in 1921 a police investigation of names submitted by committees showed that 260 such judges and clerks recommended were "police characters."

Inducement Present System. "Imagine, if you can, the magnitude of creekedness that could be performed with such an array of judges and clerks as that," he said. "Some objection to the present system is made," he continued, "but for the most part it has been made by political leaders who want to control the selection of candidates."

"There is in my mind no greater crime than election corruption. Election crooks are worse than thieves or robbers. A thief or robber when he commits a crime, harms only one individual. When an election crook commits a crime he may harm the whole community. The election crook is a traitor to our form of government."

He referred to "a time" when the police department intimidated voters: when political leaders caused their workers to "throw" voters whose politics was known out of line; when clerks and judges delayed the process of voting during closing hour of the polls approached.

False Registration Cited. The discovery that great numbers of voters were registered from lodging houses who did not live there was also cited by Miller. "There was registered from one vacant lot on the levee more than 400 voters," he said.

"In 1916," he said, "many persons in the colored districts were kept from voting by the police with the explanation that the colored people were rushing the polls and creating a disturbance. Not only did they keep colored voters who were present from voting but their activity and slugging kept many voters from going near the polls. No person cares to come in contact with a policeman's club. This outrage was portrayed in our public press—but nothing was ever done about it."

AMENDED PETITION AGAINST WILLECKEN SURETIES FILED

Circuit Clerk Names Five in Action to Recover Shortage of Predecessor.

Circuit Clerk Henry Kirchner of St. Louis County yesterday filed an amended petition in his suit against the 10 bondsmen of his predecessor, Arthur D. Willecken, in compliance with a ruling by Judge Wurdeman that separate suits should be filed against bondsmen for each of Willecken's two terms in office.

Those named in today's action are George Hoppel, Jacob Studdt, Charles Barthold, Alvin H. Weil and Charles Autenreith. As Barthold died in November, 1922, and Well a year later, the petition asks for judgments against their estates. As is known, the suit for bond forfeiture are an outgrowth of a shortage of $10,865 which Willecken left when he turned the office of Circuit Clerk over to Kirchner. An indictment for embezzlement was returned against Willecken last winter, but Circuit Judge Wurdeman last June instructed a jury to return a verdict of acquittal because the indictment did not specify whether the money in question was State or county funds.

SAYS SCION OF RICH FAMILY LIVED WITH ANOTHER'S WIFE

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Testimony was given yesterday in the trial of the suit for divorce brought by R. M. Cramer against Mrs. Susan Cramer, that H. P. Crane Jr., scion of the wealthy Crane family of St. Charles, a suburb, had lived with Mrs. Cramer. The Court indicated it would grant a decree to Cramer. Mrs. Cramer revealed to him, John Adams, a grocer, testified that the Mr. Cramer living with her was not her husband, but was H. P. Crane Jr., when he called to ask for an explanation of a worthless check given him by the Cramers in paying for $500 worth of groceries. Angus Ross, who rented a room in Mrs. Cramer's apartment, said that he had lived with the couple under the impression that Crane was her husband. Mrs. Cramer, taking the stand in her own defense, denied all implications of misconduct and said that Crane had only lived with her as a boarder.

THIRTY-SECOND INSTALLMENT.

PROMPTLY at 10 o'clock that which had been honestly advertised as an Unrestricted Sale of the Fine Furniture, Rare Books, Paintings and Household Effects of Garnett Peake, Esq., was begun before the largest and the strangest gathering that had ever met together in the old Peake house. The secondhand trade came early to finger and to paw. Then there were great numbers of that curious tribe who through the criminal courts, gasping and waiting for a few sentences of purulent testimony. Limousines came puffing up, bearing representatives of what Flora Lee called Rich White Trash; deploring the bad style of the Peake furniture, they bickered for trophies of a fallen civilization. Few of the Satsumas came. With them it was a matter of delicacy. They honored the weddings and funerals of their clan, but never the auctions. A few of the more prosperous livingstones, however, attended the shameful ordeal hoping that some of the Peake pieces might be kept in the family. Garnett Peake had sent a representative to bid on the portraits of the Generals Conde—(first and second), General Horatio and the late Judge Peake. Mrs. Garnett's money was behind this; for she had developed a pride in Garnett's ancestry quite out of proportion to her pride in Garnett.

Mr. Fen Kallish, the celebrated auctioneer, took the block with a deferential air which the Peakes, even in bankruptcy, seemed to call forth from their fellow citizens. "Now whadda I hear?" asked Mr. Kallish, having observed a flowered French carpet. "Whadda I hear? Remember, ladies and gentlemen, a historic carpet. The greatest figures in history from Washington to Robert E. Lee have danced on this here carpet. Whadda I hear?"

"Fifteen dollars," ventured a chirp from the front row.

"Fifteen dollars?" You ought to speak pottly, madam. But fifteen is bid, I regret to say. Who's got the civic pride to make it twenty-five-ah? Do I hear twenty-five-ah? Good! And thirty-ah? Remember, ladies and gentlemen, the walls have ears. Don't let 'em think we're biddin' for a bag o' popcorn. And thirty-five-ah? Ike, unroll a corner and let the ladies see the Rich floral design.

"It's worn pretty bad," one was heard to say.

"If it was in rags and tatters it would be worth a hundred for the sentiment it contains," Mr. Kallish rolled on. "Carpet for a bride and groom. . . Forty-five-ah. Fifty-ah. Make me want to get married again. Sixty-ah. Sixty-sixty-six. Ike, take the name and address of the lady in the mole skin."

And so the slaughter progressed from room to room. Mr. Kallish working himself up to a frenzy of bidding. The Peake paintings, mostly doubtful, fell to a representative of the new Hamilton Annex where an art gallery was being planned. The three best ancestral portraits were sold to Garnett's agent, not without competitive bidding; the new Hamilton needed family portraits. Old Conde on his milk-white charger cost Garnett $100. Kelsey Livingston bought a set of Livingstone rosewood for $150.

In the dining room the bidding gained vigor. A large share of the Peake Dresden went to Mrs. Phileas Pratt, wife of the new concrete king. Mrs. Wilbur Ketten, whose husband had established a corn syrup industry, obtained the Sheffield with the Peake crest; in fact, she was the only one who was not fatigued with her lot she bore it to her car. And so on to the end. On the formal verandah, where they had never been permitted to gather, Peake negroes were leaning against the pillars in the restful attitudes of their race. Zeno Washington, handsome and sprightly in his new chauffeur's uniform, smoked cigarettes; Maida Washington, his no-count cousin, who had once served Mrs. Garnett Peake in the capacity of lady's maid, giggled at each move in the tragic comedy. One of her children—the cross-eyed one—played in and out of the front door. Straight as a string and as thin, old Linda slunk around the corner with her shawl shawl bulging with some uncounted trifles that she had pilfered from the kitchen. Old Harris who had renewed his consolation in the gin bottle, stood with bare, bald head, proaching solemnly. Like the house, itself, he had lost his dignity.

"De priests of Basam done po' watch on de sacrifice. Dey done fetch it in buckets an' hawgheads. 'Stretch y'elves,' say de Prophet, 'an' tote mo' wathu.' An' when dey got dem totin' wathu dey do berrit of de Law; come downin'—dem frizzle 'em up in fish an' smoke. Whah dem priests o' Basam den an' theh wathu an' the kindlin' wood? Dey's logn gone. Oh Law! De worn purritheth but de righteous endow forevuh. . . Harris was drunk and heart-broken and outraged, but the silvery voice of the auctioneer went on with its blandishments. Jehovah still withheld his blasting fire. There was no more virtue in the old theology.

Just as Linda reached the sidewalk with the guilty secrets under her shawl a fine gentleman in a fine car drove up to the curb and accosted her so sharply that she partly relaxed. He then perceived a mouse-trap, a cotton stocking and a rather rusty egg beater to strewn themselves across the pavement.

"Is the auction still rollin' on?" the new arrival asked.

"Yesuh, Colonel. I 'spec' they stay there till they sell the roof." "Is Miss Peake at home?" "Law, Mistah. Ah reckon she ain't home in dis house no mo'. None of us is to home."

"Where's she living?" "Whah?" She took a long look before deciding that he was in no way connected with the Sheriff, then replied, "Miss Mahgret an' Miss Flo Lee have took apartments. Yassa. On Manila street, jes' two blocks fum Prince's avenue. Jes' very temp'ry apartments. Yass. Her head turned like an owl's as he bounded toward the house."

An auctioneer's twang on the second floor brought Admah to an oval bed chamber where soft brocade panels looked regally down on a scene of confusion. Guided furniture had been piled pell-mell, a crowd jammed the doorway, gapping morbidly. The bidding had progressed well, for Mr. Kallish's practiced eye had discerned an antique dealer from Chicago.

Pushing his way in, Admah gave his emotional mind an instant to take in the picture and reflect upon its significance. The beautiful queenly room . . . and people were gathered around as if they were watching a dogfight. A graceful bird spread golden wings above a bluish mirror. The wall was bed. . . She had slept there, doctored herself before that mirror. . . And one enchanted night she had laid her head on his shoulder; he had fed her breath on his cheek. . .

A fat man in a gray derby had paused an instant to hold a tempting morsel before the crowd. To Admah it looked like a bedspread. . . it must have been. Mighty fine, he thought, and was impressed by its silken lustre and its embroidery of dogs and swans, and long-tailed pheasants. There was a crown in the center and a lot of words in a queer language.

"Ladies and gentlemen," the auctioneer was explaining as he held the spread in his purplish hands, "this here goes with the lot. It ought to be in a King's museum. Get the fineness of that embroidery, done by ladies that was dead and gone before this town was ever heard of. And the royal crown in the center here—"

"What does that there motto say?" drawled a hanger-on. "French, I reckon—er!"—to the Chicago buyer in the corner. "Mr. Bloomer, what does that there motto say?"

The dapper little man smiled bashfully, his face a network of wrinkles. "I'd hate to tell you," he tittered, and the crowd tittered with him.

"Well, eight hundred has been bid for this peerless collection of royal palace pieces," Mr. Kallish resumed, laking aside the spread and twanging like a loose banjo string. "Do I hear nine hundred? Do—I hear?"

"Nine hundred," croaked Admah, almost inaudibly.

"Nine-fifty-nine-fifty-nine-fifty," the twang went on until the Chicago dealer raised his hand. Then, "Do I hear a thousand? An even thousand?"

"Here!" What had made Admah so hoarse? The bidding had settled down to a duel of money between him and the wrinkled little fellow. A thousand dollars for a bed and a few fixins! Ma Holtz had furnished a whole house for $30. . . But Mr. Kallish was now jumping forward a hundred dollars at a time. Admah's hand was up at $1200, the Chicago buyer's at $1300.

"And now do I hear $1400 for this imperishable?"

"Here!" said Admah faintly, and something told him he had finished. Mr. Kallish grew a little noisier, but the man in the corner pocketed his hands and growled, "Fourteen hundred—three times," came the fateful twang. "And gone to Mr. Admah R. Holtz, publicly acclaimed as an art collector, felt a grim satisfaction. Indeed, in every way it was a proud day for him. In view of his audience he counted out the money in hundred dollar bills. Then he became confused, enjoying the sensations of one who, having purchased a charming giraffe, is at a loss for a place in which to stable it. Half way down the hall he was stopped by the calling of his name.

It was Mr. Kallish's like, bustly explaining. "Them things has got to be took away today, Mr. Holtz. We can engage a van if you wish. Mr. Holtz, and send 'em to your residence. Yes suh. Jes' leave your address on this card."

Slowly, casually, Admah flourished a stub of pencil over the proffered card, and after a thought he scribbled:

"Mrs. San Piar, care Miss Peake, Texas Apartments, City."

He paused, wondering if he had gotten her name right. Another pause. Finally he yielded to vanity and jotted the line below:

"Compliments of the Candy Man."

CHAPTER 31.

It was all quite different from the way he had left the Peake house one afternoon seven years before. Today he was going as a conqueror should, buoyant and self-possessed. It had cost him dear; but what conquest doesn't? In his wake came the awed gossip of the negroes on the veranda: "That's him! He done bought Miss Flo Lee's gold bald an' bureau an' everything for $10,000!" He moved towards his car, new authority in his step, a man to be considered. Indeed, the Holtzes had emerged from their mud flat.

As if to point his thoughts and add a final touch to the day's drama, a boy carrying papers came down the street, in his mouth the formless cry: "Ya papoo; Abba plo wahi!"

Admah bought a paper; he hadn't seen the news in print. And now it faced him on the front page of the Evening Democrat.

ADMAH R. HOLTZ MADE PRESIDENT OF THE P. & T.

There was a poor reproduction of a worse photograph, touched up to bring out his lips and eyebrows; beside it ran a fairly accurate account of how the principalty had reorganized the P. & T., naming Holtz as president. "How Barefoot Boy Climbed Ladders" headlined a "human interest story."

Admah read every word while a motley throng passed in and out of the bankrupt Peake house. Without so much as looking up, he knew that the town was staring at him, curiously, enviously.

Yes, seven years had made quite a difference.

CHAPTER 32.

By spring of another year the difference was greater still. To follow Admah's simile of the duck in the ditch, he had been thrown from small waters into big ones, floated instinctively refused to drown. In gambling for the nominal leadership of a large enterprise his first impulse had been sufficed with vanity. Bitterly he had sworn that the Candy Man should become the Candy Kid.

Luck and work were on Admah's side. The fierce industry which had created a Candy Holtz gave him sufficient driving power to lead a forlorn hope in a more audacious adventure. At first there had been a clamor to shut down the shop until "conditions" improved. Admah saw nothing but maladministration in such a move; he hadn't risked his credit to drive a dead horse. First he quarreled with Mr. Canfield, treasurer and relic of the old organization, then he worked his will.

WHERE DOLLS HAVE THEIR OWN SPECIAL HOLIDAY.

THE third day of the third month of each year is a day to which all little girls of Japan look forward with the keenest anticipation. For it is then that they bring out all their dolls in state, dressed in holiday array, and prepare a great feast for them.

The third day of the third month would correspond to the middle of the day of our own April, and at this time the sakura trees, which resemble our peach trees, burst into bloom.

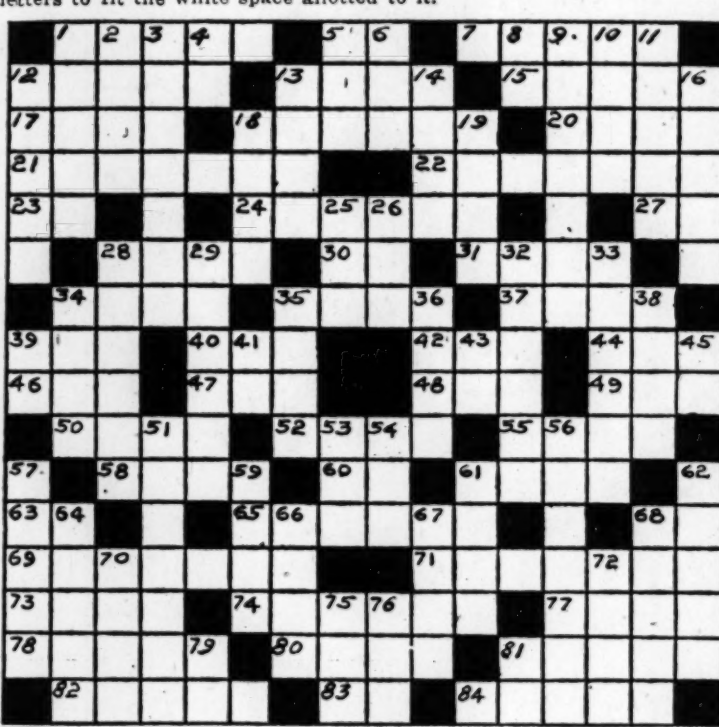

Timbale de macaroni a la Bekendorf is one of the good daily dishes at Poccardi's, the most popular Italian restaurant along the boulevards.

Cook a pound of macaroni in a little water, add one-fourth pound of butter, salt and pepper and a good amount of grated Parmesan cheese. Butter a mould and powder with bread-crumbs. Pour in one-half of the macaroni, and over this lay a few slices of smoked salmon, rolled in good tomato sauce. Add the remainder of the macaroni and bake in the oven for about 20 minutes. Remove from the mould and serve hot.

Today's Winning Puzzle

The puzzle printed below wins the prize of $10 offered daily by the Post-Dispatch for the most original cross-word puzzle submitted to this paper. It was contributed by Nick K. Givens, Jr., 5954 Plymouth avenue, St. Louis. The solution of this puzzle will be printed tomorrow.

Each number in the puzzle indicates the position of the first letter of a word. Each word reads from left to right (horizontal) or downward (vertical), according to position. Lettered in correctly, words that cross will interlock. Each number in the white squares also refers to a definition in the accompanying table. Each definition suggests a word possessing the exact number of letters to fit the white space allotted to it.

Then the children prepare a great feast for the dolls. Of course, the little figures are believed to partake liberally of everything that is set before them, but after they have been satisfied there always remains enough for the grown-ups to feast upon in the evening.

This feast, after the children have retired with their dolls, is the culminating event of this pretty festival. Back go the dolls to their customary place in the nursery; the children resume their every-day frocks, and all goes on as before until the third day of the third month shall return again and once more bring the dolls their moment of honor and glory.

Your money back if you don't like it.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

About Yeast. A cupful of liquid yeast is equivalent to about half a cake of compressed yeast or a whole cake of the dry.

Protects the Finish. A sheet of oilcloth over the dining-room table, under the alliance cloth, will prove a great protection against both hot dishes and spilled liquids.

Remove the Evidence. If the cake should be burned a bit on the edges, remove this blackened portion with an ordinary grater. It will leave a smooth surface for frosting.

Avoid Soiled Clothes. Wipe off the clothesline with a damp cloth before hanging out the clothes, particularly in freezing weather. Otherwise the clothes freeze to the line and take up the soil under each clothespin.

To Clear Drippings. When the drippings used for frying become brown, add water and a pinch of bi-carbonate of soda and put it in the oven to boil. When cool, pour off water and the drippings will be clear and white once again.

New Inventions. Of European invention is a single pole tent that can be converted into a raft that will support a person, and it can be rolled and carried on a man's back.

A Louisiana man has invented a kiln for quickly drying lumber, at the same time removing much of the residue and vaporizing the turpentine, which is recovered.

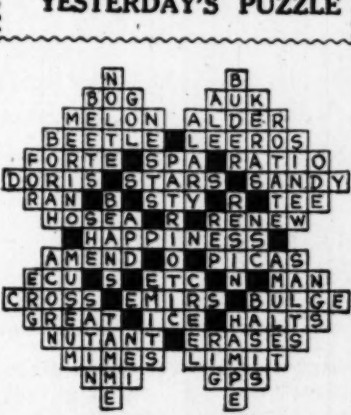

An Ohioan has invented a spare wheel carrier for the rear of automobiles that can lower the wheel to the ground to enable the car to be moved sideways by its owner.

An inventor has patented a vulcanized rubber saw handle reinforced with wire.

The handles of new ice tongs are so formed that a man can operate them with one hand.

German engineers in Brazil have developed an automobile motor suited to the use of alcohol for fuel.

Love in a Mist

THERE is a flower, Love-in-a-mist. Love itself could be as fragile, no more lovely, no more fairy-like.

Love is a flower, too. It must be tended, watched, handled LITTLE. Love spends much of its life in a mist. It comes into flower in the moon-mist of romance. Loves are but little through it but the outlines of a dream. They walk in a mist to their eyes. Its cotton-wool shrouds out the sights and sounds of the ordinary world.

And you will never say that they do not marry in a dash, for a fog. For who knows hardly where he is THAT day! Even if a dream mind remembers every little trifle years after, still it seems a dream wrapped round in unearthly nebula.

MEDITATIONS —OF A— MARRIED WOMAN By HELEN ROWLAND

THOSE MEN:
It would be a simple thing to please a man, if only his theories and ideals were not so different from his habits and complexes.

Of course a man admires dignity and reserve in a woman, but the one he sees offmost is less like a noble St. Bernard or a stately greyhound than like a playful foxterrier puppy, who frisks gleefully around him and makes him feel WELCOME.

A man admires a capable woman who can mend his pockets, put up a wonderful picnic lunch, drive the car and paint the furniture—but he generally wakes up to find himself engaged to the girl who holds a match to his cigar with a little helpless white hand.

He admires a beautifully groomed woman, whose dress and apartment are always in perfect order; but when he wants to spend a restful evening, he seeks out some informal woman, who will let him lounge on her sofa cushions, and not be too particular about where he puts his boots, or his cigar ashes, or whether he musses her marcel.

He may admire a fearless, athletic woman, who can enjoy his sports with him, stand the rain, and tramp along beside him unweary.

But, somehow he always gets entangled with the delicate, frivolous little thing, who wears high heels and georgette crepe, asks foolish questions, doesn't listen to his answers, and "needs protection."

Every man admires honesty in a woman. Yet the one he spends his time and money on usually breaks her dates with sweet apologies, keeps him waiting—and guessing—and raises contrite eyes when he accuses her of flirting with another man.

A man admires modesty and simplicity in a woman, but the one he takes out on Sunday evenings wears revealing gowns and lip rouge and looks as though she MIGHT be kissed on her way home.

A man admires a brilliant and witty woman—but the one he takes to dinner is the kind who agrees with all his opinions, laughs at his feeblest joke and asks him to "tell it again."

Every man admires pride in a woman; but the one he goes BACK to is the woman who can smile and forgive when he offers a weak apology, who pretends to "understand," and who LISTENS to his explanations with an indulgent ear, and a tender, relenting eye.

Oh, yes, a man's IDEALS for women are awfully high—but they are SO adjustable! What can a poor girl do!

Children's Bedtime Story By Thornton W. Burgess

The Young Otter Pays the Price

If life and freedom be the cost,
What matters if a toe is lost?

—Little Joe Otter.

HAVE you ever tried to make up your mind to have an aching tooth pulled? If you have, you remember what hard work it was and how you kept putting it off and putting it off and putting it off. It was the same way with the young Otter caught in a steel trap by one toe. His father, Little Joe Otter, had told him that there was only one way in which he could gain freedom, and that was by losing that toe. He had told him that he would have to lose that toe or lose his life.

But the young Otter didn't want to lose his toe. He said so. He said so over and over. He just couldn't make up his mind to it. It seemed to him a dreadful thing to lose a toe.

"What is losing your toe compared with losing your life?" his father asked.

"But perhaps I won't lose my life," protested the young Otter.

"Yes, you will," replied Little Joe Otter. "It is just as certain as it is that you are now caught in this trap. I can't help you; your mother can't help you; no one can help you. That two-legged creature, who set this dreadful trap, will come to see if any one has been caught in it. Then he'll kill you. If you want this to happen rather than lose that toe, why I may as well go back to your mother and sister. It is useless for me to stay here. There is no knowing when that trapper may come and he may have a terrible gun with him. A good hard pull with all your might will set you free. I'm going now. Come on."

"Goodbye," said Little Joe Otter, and began to swim swiftly away.

The young Otter shook his head. His eyes were filled with tears. He couldn't bear the thought of being left alone, yet he couldn't make up his mind to lose that toe. That trap didn't hurt so very much. But he was sure that if he should try to pull himself free, it would hurt dreadfully. It was because of this that he couldn't make up his mind to try.

"Goodbye," said Little Joe Otter, and began to swim swiftly away. He didn't even look back. At first the young Otter couldn't believe that he was really being left alone. But his father kept straight on. Every second he was setting farther and farther away. At last the young Otter realized that his father had meant just what he said.

The young Otter stood it just as long as he could. Then the thought of being left alone in that cruel trap became more than he could bear. He plunged after his father. The trap brought him up short. But with all his might he struggled. He didn't even notice the pain. The thought of being left alone there was worse than any pain.

Suddenly that trap let go. At least he thought it had let go. He was free! I wish you could have seen him shoot through the water. How he did swim! Little Joe Otter heard him coming and waited for him. "So you decided that freedom is worth the price of a toe," said he.

Such a funny look as the face of that young Otter wore. It was not until then that he realized that he had left his toe behind.
